India team was inconsolable after losing 3-4 to Great Britain | PTI

THEY DARED TO DREAM AND HOW

Schopman new coach

Current analytical coach, Janneke Schopman, will be new coach. Sjoerd Marijne said he would be stepping down. The next big assignment is the Asian Champions trophy in Korea in October.

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Chennai

DURING the 2016 Olympics in Rio de Janeiro, the women's hockey team felt overawed not just by the occasion but by the pace and raw athleticism on display. They thought they were inferior to the likes of Great Britain, Australia and Argentina. That perception gradually began to change after scientific advisor Wayne Lombard joined the team in 2017. He convinced them that 'it's okay to have a strong physique as a female athlete'. He also sold them an idea they had never thought about before. 'Using that physicality to compete against the best'. At the 2018 World Cup, the tide began to change. They held England and the US before reaching the quarters. It was their best ever performance at a World Cup since the semis in 1974.

On the shiny new, often sun-kissed astroturf at the Oi Hockey Stadium in Tokyo, it was Indian women's team that used all that power, pace and raw athleticism that had once scared them. They beat Australia and gave Argentina an almighty fright. On Friday, they went toe to toe with Great Britain, defending champions and hockey elite, before going down 3-4 in what will go down as one of the epic battles for bronze. That they lost the medal match isn't the story. That they played in the bronze medal match is the story that will be told, over and over again.

Even in a country that's had a habit of reminiscing fourth place finishes decades after the fact — Milkha Singh (1960), PT Usha (1984), Joydeep Karmakar (2012) and Dipa Karmakar (2016) to name a few — this finish by the women's hockey team will have a special place in the pantheon of near misses. Why? For long, nobody really believed in them, including their own families who fought hard to change their line of work. Now defunct Indian Hockey Federation didn't do much. Even Hockey India took time to promote them.

They are now front and centre, reminding people that even the most outrageous of dreams can be achieved. They are not just an inspiration but something higher. This brave, courageous bunch of daughters, friends, sisters are, first and foremost, heroes. Real life heroes you wouldn't see in any film.

RBI absorbs inflation heat to support growth

Sees 5.7% retail inflation in FY22; pegs GDP growth at 9.5%; investment demand may not see immediate improvement

SESA SEN @New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Friday did leave the repo rate unchanged at 4% but it is clearly looking to move past its peak dovish stance amid unrelenting inflationary pressures. Yet, for now, the priority remains to support growth until data improves materially.

"The supply-side drivers (of inflation) could be transitory while demand-pull pressures remain inert, given the slack in the economy," said RBI Governor Shaktikanta Das, adding that a pre-emptive monetary policy response at this stage may kill the "nascent and hesitant recovery" that is trying to secure a foothold in difficult conditions.

While it has retained its projection for the current financial (FY22) year at 9.5%, the Q1 growth numbers have been revised upwards to 21.4% from 18.5% in the June forecast. The Q2-Q4 numbers, however, have been significantly downgraded. Economic recovery, the MPC believes, would be aided by robust rural demand, buoyant exports and anticipated higher government expenditure. Investment demand may, however, not see an immediate improvement.

Also, the July round results of the RBI's consumer confidence survey suggest that sentiments may have returned to optimistic territory from historic lows.

Going forward, a robust outlook for agriculture and rural demand will support private consumption and early results from listed companies show that corporates have been able to maintain their healthy growth in sales, wage growth and profitability, led by IT firms and this will also support the aggregate disposable income of consumers, the MPC observed.

However, of greater concern is the inflation projection that has been revised upwards to 5.7% (from 5.1%) for FY22. The headline inflation edged up sharply in May and June, breaching the 6% threshold, thanks to high crude oil prices and freight costs. Then, RBI had said "inflation is largely transitory" but now, the central bank expects it to touch 5.9% in Q2, and moderate to 5.3% and 5.8% in Q3 and Q4.

RBI said it will continue to remain close to the upper band of the inflation target of 4% (+/- 2%) till the first quarter of the next fiscal (Q1 FY23). P13

Marriage law needs to be revamped, says Kerala HC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Kochi

THE Kerala High Court on Friday held that the marriage law in the country needs to be revamped and there should not be any difficulty in having a common code of law for all communities, at least for marriage and divorce.

"Marriage and divorce must be under the secular law; that is the need of the hour. Time has come to revamp the marriage law in our country," the court held.

A division bench comprising Justice Muhammed Mustaque and Justice Kauser Edappagath also observed: "We need to have a law dealing with human problems with a humane mind to respond. Individuals are free to perform their marriages following personal law, but they cannot be absolved from compulsory solemnisation of the marriage under secular law."

SCHOOLS TO REOPEN FROM AUG 23

Schools and colleges will reopen in a graded manner in the State with classes 9 to 12 starting from August 23, Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai said on Friday. The decision on reopening classes up to 8th standard will be taken in August last week after reviewing the Covid situation. P2

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

WITH a steady rise in the number of Covid-19 cases in Karnataka, especially in districts bordering Kerala and Maharashtra, the State Government on Friday decided to impose weekend curfew in the districts, and put in place additional containment measures across the state from Saturday. Night curfew time has been advanced by an hour, and will be strictly enforced from 9pm to 5am all over Karnataka.

While the government has decided to reopen schools in a graded manner from August 23, for Classes 9 to 12, additional containment measures are being imposed from August 7 to August 16, in the light of the upcoming festival season.

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, who held a meeting with senior officers and experts to discuss measures to contain Covid-19 spread in the state, said the government has decided to impose weekend curfew in border districts, and advance night curfew time by one hour to 9pm, instead of 10pm.

The CM said that police officials have been directed to strictly enforce Covid-19 guidelines. Ministers Dr CN Ashwath Narayan, Dr K Sudhakar, Dr Deviprasad Shetty, Dr CN Manjunath, Technical Advisory Committee Chairman Dr MK Sudarshan, Chief Secretary P Ravikumar and Health Commissioner Dr KV Trilok Chandra attended the meeting to discuss measures to contain Covid spread.

Bommai said the Covid-19 Task Force will be constituted in the next two days. Dr Ashwath Narayan was heading the Task Force in the government headed by BS Yediyurappa. CONTINUED ON: P3

HOLD SEROSURVEY URGENTLY, TAC ADVISES KARNATAKA GOVT

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

THE Technical Advisory Committee (TAC) on Covid-19 has advised the State Government to hold the third serosurvey, which should also include children, urgently to mitigate the third wave. "The Central ministry too has sought the survey report. This is going to guide future actions in the State," the TAC report stated.

TAC Chairman Dr MK Sudarshan said, "It is critical to understand the current state of the virus after the second wave and it should include children. This will help us end the second wave and also mitigate the third one."

Epidemiologists said reported laboratory-confirmed Covid causes underestimate the true burden of the disease as cases without laboratory confirmation and asymptomatic and mild cases are missed by local surveillance systems. Population-based seroprevalence studies can provide better estimates by taking into account infections that were missed. The emergence of new variants and poor social distancing are most likely to be the reasons for the third wave, they warned. P7

BRAIN PLAYS TRICKS

An IT pro who forgot English and a prof who fumbled with math!

IFFATH FATHIMA @Bengaluru

ONE dreary morning, this 38-year-old woman information technology professional woke up to a horror. She had forgotten how to speak English! She had years of experience in the industry and did not even have to make an effort to speak the language in her day-to-day work. But that day, she just could not do it. However hard she tried, she could speak only Kannada.

Just the previous week, she had a severe, throbbing headache on the left side and had suffered a bout of vomiting. She consulted a physician, took some painkillers and continued with her routine as the pain subsided. It was the next week that the mental block with the language struck.

Puzzled doctors conducted a string of tests and concluded it as a stroke, while a brain angiogram confirmed a clot on the left side of the brain. The doctors put her on medications to dissolve the clot, and within days, she was back to normal and was speaking English fluently again.

At 65 years, this retired professor had sound mental faculties, till he faced a strange problem of dealing with numbers and calculations. He had trouble doing something that he had done all his working life and teaching hundreds of students. The problem lingered for three months, when an MRI scan of the brain revealed a tumor involving the left temporal and parietal lobes junction. The doctors diagnosed that the tumor had disrupted the connections in the brain, making him forget how to do the basic math. A microsurgery was performed and the tumour was removed.

"The peculiar language problem can be ignored quite often. This is a unique and rare situation affecting specific languages due to a stroke," said Dr NK Venkataramana, Founder Chairman and Director Neurosciences, Brains Hospitals, Bengaluru. P7

CM's ORDER

IT'S BACK TO SCHOOL FOR CLASSES 9-12 FROM AUG 23

Will take a call on Classes 1-8 by month-end, says Bommai

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE state government has decided to reopen schools and colleges in a graded manner from August 23, even as measures are being taken to contain the Covid-19 spread and tackle the anticipated third wave.

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Friday said schools will reopen for Classes 9 to 12 from August 23, by following Covid guidelines, and a decision for Classes 1 to 8 will be taken in the last week of August after reviewing the Covid situation. "It has been decided to conduct classes on alternate days," the chief minister told reporters after holding a meeting with experts and senior officers.

A senior officer said detailed guidelines on the reopening of the schools will be issued in the next three to four days. Meanwhile, all staff, including teachers, non-teaching staff and drivers have to be vaccinated before commencing classes. "Around 84 per cent of teachers working in government schools are vaccinated, and the remaining too will be covered within the next few days," the officer said.

Since the government has decided to commence Classes 9 and 10, schools will have sufficient space to comply with social distancing norms as PU classes will be held in different campuses, the officer said.

STAKEHOLDERS were divided on the reopening of Classes 9-12 from August 23 as announced by Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Friday.

Niru Agarwal, Trustee, Greenwood High International School, said, "We are delighted. Finally, our campus will be filled with children. Classroom learning is important for children and it will also get them physically active again."

Shweta Sastri, Managing Director, Canadian International School, said, "This is the first step in the right direction. We now look forward to the decision to bring back younger students."

Shashi Kumar, General Secretary, Associated Managements of Private Schools in Karnataka, said a thought must be given to opening primary schools as children are facing learning losses.

Lokesh Talikatte, president, Registered Unaided Private Schools management Association (RUPSA), said they had earlier sought means to reestablish academic connect between students and schools.

Educationist Dr Niranjanaradhya VP said the School Development and Monitoring Committee Coordination Forum said he was unable to understand the rationale of opening higher classes when many states were opening lower classes.

Meanwhile, a parent and a member of Voice of Parents, said, "We are not bound by whatever the government decides. Especially on matters of kids' safety, parents prefer to see other alternatives than forcing children to be a subject of the government's experiment."

Metro work gets push after HC nod to axe trees

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

A recent High Court order permitting the Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Ltd (BMRCL) to transplant 348 trees has given impetus to the stalled work on the Underground Metro Corridor of Phase-II, said senior Metro officials. The Karnataka High Court, on July 15, permitted it to cut and translocate 348 trees and plant 4,000 trees alternatively. Earlier court orders had permitted cutting lesser number of trees.

A senior official said they were waiting for permission since March 2019. "It has been over two years. The Underground Corridor from Nagavara to Diary Circle was proceeding slowly as permission was not given for axing of trees. We need to carry out excavation for the corridor as well as shift utilities. We have started on these now," he said. "A total of 522 trees will be cut or translocated to facilitate work along the 13.92 km Nagawara-Kalena Agrahara (Gottigere) Line," he added.

BMRCL has planted 621 trees near Puttenahalli Lake as a compensation for cutting trees for Metro's Phase II project in Bengaluru

Giving a break-up of the tree status as on August 5, the official said BMRCL proposes to cut 425 trees apart from transplanting 97 of them. "Until Thursday, 414 trees have already been cut while all the 97 await transplantation," he said.

"The translocation of trees will take at least two months, but the trees that need to be cut have already been done so," another Metro official said. "We have begun our long-pending work at Diary Circle, Nagawara, Langford Station and MG Road now. The court order has come as a big relief as it could have delayed the Pink Line," he added. The Nagawara station and ramp will require the maximum number of 56 trees to be felled and 22 to be transplanted, the official said.

The BMRCL Managing Director, Anjum Parwez, told TNIE that they be felling or transplanting 5,500 trees totally for Phase-II projects, but would plant 50,000 trees to compensate for it.

On the status of the ongoing drilling by the Tunnel Boring Machines along the underground corridor, an official said, "There have been no major problems. The TBMs are totally drilling nearly 40 metres every day."

'Citizens should stop spitting in public places, it can spread Covid'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

"STOP spitting in public places. It is not just anti-social but also unhealthy. Reckless spitting leads to the spread of various infections and diseases like coronavirus, tuberculosis and many others," said BBMP Special Commissioner health, D Randeep on Friday.

He was speaking to media on the sidelines of flagging off the Stop Spitting campaign. The StopIndiaSpitting and Spit Free India teams came together for a four-day event, starting from August 6, against spitting in public places, timed with the visit of Team Sare Jahan Se Accha, Pune, in collaboration with Beautiful Bengaluru and 18 other campaign partners.

BBMP marshals had recently organised a walkathon in Bengaluru to create awareness against the habit of spitting in public places

BBMP officials, marshals, RWAs will also be present.

Along with BBMP, KSRTC, police department, many other government agencies have also joined hands with the campaign. Randeep said spitting ruins the city's beauty and cleanliness. "It also affects public health and impacts the City's Swachh Survekshan ranking. Citizens need to be educated about this. If someone is spitting in a public place, they can potentially spread diseases," he said.

He added that spitting in public is an offence and through this campaign it will be reinforced.

University offers scholarships to Covid-hit students

ENS @Bengaluru

THE recently established RV University, Bengaluru, has instituted around 100 scholarships for meritorious students and those who have been impacted by Covid-19.

Vice-Chancellor Dr Y S R Murthy said that the scholarship will be equivalent to 100 per cent of tuition fee for students who have lost one or both parents to Covid. "We will cover 10 students under this scholarship in our three schools dealing with liberal arts and sciences, design and economics and finance," he said.

The university has also instituted several school-specific scholarships. Elaborating on them, Dr Murthy said that in the School of Economics and Finance, which offers BBA, BCom, BA (Economics) programmes, 100 per cent tuition fee will be provided as scholarship to 10 students who have scored 95 per cent or more marks in their Class 12 or PUC examination.

"Scholarships will be awarded based on the performance in Undergraduate Common Entrance Exam for Design (UCEED) and NID Design Aptitude Test (DAT) and on first-come-first served basis. Renewal of the scholarship will be subject to outstanding performance in the first year," he added.

After Lokayukta rap, BDA restores site to senior citizens, to pay ₹50,000 fine

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

IN response to the action initiated by the Karnataka Lokayukta against the alleged fraud by officials of BDA, the possession of a site at HAL 2nd stage was restored in favour of senior citizens.

The BDA secretary filed a letter of confirmation dated July 31, 2021, before the Lokayukta, confirming that the site bearing No. 3504/C at HAL 2nd stage, which was sold to the complainants — VS Kanakaraj and his wife Vasantha Kokilam Kanakaraj — in an auction, was confirmed in their favour.

In order to relieve the hardship being faced by the complainants who are senior citizens, on account of the maladministration of concerned officials, Lokayukta Justice P Vishwanatha Shetty said the complainants are entitled to a compensation of ₹50,000, which has to be paid by BDA within eight weeks. However, the BDA is entitled to recover the same with 12% interest per annum from the concerned officials who have built up fake records, he added.

According to the order passed by Justice Shetty, the couple purchased the site in 2003 for ₹64.74 lakh and the sale deed was executed by the BDA in their favour in 2005. However, it was allotted to Ravikumar and Ramesh with a new number, as against the acquisition of the land to the extent of 19.5 guntas in Yadiyur in Bengaluru south taluk, for a road in 2018. In turn, they sold it to one Shashikumar Naik.

When the report was received from the vigilance wing of the BDA, it was found that the said site was originally sold to the complainants via auction. Therefore, the BDA submitted the letter of confirmation to the Lokayukta.

The Lokayukta observed that it was not permissible for the BDA to allot the same site to someone else. The BDA explained it was not allotted but a fake number was incorporated to a site which was not in existence by showing the boundaries of the site of the complainants.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

07th August: It's a businesslike day, astrologically speaking. That's a statement which concerns all of us, no matter what our individual stars say. So, whatever else you do today, remember that there'll always come a point at which you may have to put your fantasies to one side and stick to the facts - even if only for five minutes!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
A couple of tricky aspects should make this a relatively important period in your life, and as you look back, you will see how even chance events were to have a very deep significance. It follows that careful planning is necessary, but you should also be open to spontaneous invitations.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
The world is polarised between two completely opposing forces, and you're in the middle! If there is any way out of a current dilemma, you may be best advised not to take it. By that, I mean that you may do very well indeed if you stick around and face up to even impossible challenges.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
You're still in an energetic phase, but I think you should accord a slightly higher priority to communication rather than action. It's not facts which are important, though: rather it's the inner meaning which needs to be understood. If you get a grip on the big picture then everything else should fall into place.

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
You can't always control other people's reactions, but certain individuals still need to realise that you shouldn't be needled, undermined or exploited. You may have to buy yourself out of a problem and spend your way to happiness. In any event, a generous gesture would not go amiss.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
New and exciting planetary aspects are added to what we know already, making it certain that you're now about to hit the stratosphere. You may still be on the launch pad, but you've plenty of time, so don't worry that you're about to be left behind.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
If you take your mind back to what occurred about six months ago, you will see that there are strange connections with what is happening now. You may therefore be in a fine position to learn from your mistakes, which must surely be a valuable bonus!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
This is no time to go over old ground. Rather you should be building for the future. Go for serious pleasures and cultural pursuits if you can and, romantically, make commitment your goal, even if socially you're becoming something of a butterfly.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
Partners or close associates may very soon be more than a little surprised by a change in your attitudes or lifestyle. The next few days ought to be enlightening and you should allow yourself to be as spontaneous as possible. Keep your diary open!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
There are a couple of extremely difficult aspects, but their relationship to your sign seems to be rather incidental. It's therefore likely that you'll dodge any flying missiles and have a pleasant time. Oh, and family contacts should be strengthened and treasured.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
Financial matters need to be handled with care, but you can probably afford to put certain obligations to one side. What's more important today is the quality of your social contacts and, if a short journey is necessary, don't delay. One friend who understands you is worth more than a thousand casual acquaintances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Once in a while the planetary aspects assume truly magical proportions. Today is one such moment. Even if life is currently rather tranquil, take a little time to meditate on what could be. The point is that you have to establish exactly what you should be doing.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
You should be aware that it is possible to get your own way without actually saying what you want. The nice thing about the present time is that you may need to do no more than send out the right telepathic signals. Give it a try! And if it doesn't work, adopt a different approach.

Hospitals bank on govt for O_2 supply in 3rd wave

A few have set up oxy plants, but say cannot solely depend on them

RANJANI MADHAVAN
@ Bengaluru

Bengaluru saw acute shortage of medical oxygen during the peak of the Covid-19 second wave earlier this year | ASHISHKRISHNA HP

THOUGH some hospitals are trying to augment their medical oxygen supply, a majority are still banking on the government to provide them with liquid medical oxygen (LMO) should we witness yet another surge during the Covid-19 third wave.

Two months ago, hospitals were asked to set up PSA (Pressure Swing Adsorption) oxygen plants or refilling plants on their own. On the other hand, 1200 MT LMO was allocated to Karnataka after a court order but there has been a massive shortfall in the amount being sent daily.

Barring two to three hospitals who are members of the Private Hospitals and Nursing Homes Association (PHANA), most of them have not built oxygen plants, as they believe it to be impractical.

According to Dr Rajasekhar Y L, secretary, PHANA, the capital investment is heavy -- Rs 60 lakh to Rs 70 lakh -- and the expense will get passed on to patients, thereby making healthcare unaffordable.

"Small hospitals do not have the required place and power supply to build oxygen plants. They also cannot be the only source of oxygen. If they don't function, we will need backup cylinders. We are not free from depending on the government for LMO," said Dr Rajasekhar.

He pointed out that if there is a surge in demand, it is the duty of the state to step in. "They have to manage the logistics in advance, and activate nodal officer teams. Both the government and oxygen manufacturers need to tell us how much they will supply," he added.

Acting on the government order, Raja Rajeshwari Medical College and Hospital (RRMCH) is building a PSA plant and increasing the capacity of their LMO tank. Though they are prepared, they are unsure of oxygen supply from the government and private manufacturing companies. "PSA plants help small hospitals with 100 to 200 beds, providing 7 lakh to 8 lakh litres per day. But for a hospital like ours with 1,200 beds, at the peak of the second wave, we required 30 lakh litres per day, for which we relied on the government," said Dr Naveen S, principal, RRMCH.

Though Suguna Hospital built a PSA plant before the government ordered it, the management is of the opinion that it can only be a backup, and "not the main source of oxygen". "Moreover, sometimes not enough pressure is generated to pump oxygen from the PSA plant into the pipelines, during which time the LMO comes into play, automatically. Hence, it is better the government invests in cylinders and big oxygen manufacturing plants," said Dr Ravindra R, MD of Suguna Hospital.

Admitting that the allocated amount of 1200 MT did not reach Karnataka during the second wave, Munish Moudgil, the nodal officer for oxygen, hoped that supply improves in future. "The government is not helpless. We have the authority to enforce and ensure the allocated oxygen," he said, adding that they are ready to take action against those who fail to supply oxygen.

Moudgil also said they have streamlined the indent management systems for hospitals to get oxygen by applying through the software, based on their patient load.

Officials told to monitor situation in border areas

THE surge in the number of Covid-19 cases in neighbouring Kerala and Maharashtra, and increase in cases in the border districts of Karnataka, is a cause for concern for the government. Dakshina Kannada, Udupi, Mysuru, Hassan and Kodagu are reporting high number of cases over the past few days. On August 1, Dakshina Kannada had reported 410 positive cases, more than Bengaluru Urban district (409).

On Friday, Karnataka reported 1,805 new cases, including 441 from Bengaluru Urban, 411 from Dakshina Kannada, 153 from Udupi, and 90 from Mysuru.

Oficials in the border districts have been directed to closely monitor the situation, and RT-PCR negative reports have been made mandatory for all those arriving in Karnataka from Kerala and Maharashtra. While the state government's decision to make RT-PCR report mandatory, irrespective of vaccination status, has been criticised by people travelling from neighbouring states, CM Bommai on Friday made it clear that there was no change in the government's decision.

Bommai ready, list too prepared, but his ministers kept waiting

Portfolio allocation delayed as it awaits clearance; striking balance is top priority

ANUSHA RAVI @ Bengaluru

DESPITE Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai's assertion that allocation of portfolios for his cabinet ministers will be done on Friday, there was no word on it till 11.45 pm. For two days, Karnataka has had 29 ministers apart from the CM, but allocation of portfolios was delayed as the list was awaiting clearance. Newly-sworn-in ministers and MLAs made a beeline to Bommai's R T Nagar residence, anticipating portfolio allocation, even before he returned from Tumakuru late on Friday night.

After his visit to Siddaganaga Mutt in Tumakuru on Friday night, Bommai told the media around 9.45 pm that he will compile the list for portfolio allocation and send it to the Governor as soon as he returns to Bengaluru. Sources close to the CM suggested that the list had been sent beforehand, but it was awaiting clearance from the Governor and, in effect, from the BJP central leadership. Legislators including Balachandra Jarkiholi, Mahesh Kumathalli and Srimanth Patil along with ministers like V Somanna and Murugesh Nirani were waiting for the CM at his residence and discussion began as soon as Bommai reached home.

"As soon as I reach Bengaluru, I will compile the list and send it to the Governor," Bommai told the media in Tumakuru. Earlier, he said the process will be completed by end of day.

The inability to decide on a balanced list is said to have caused the delay in releasing the final list on ministry allocation. The process of sending the portfolio list to the Governor is merely an 'intimation' exercise, and not meant for approval, since it is the Chief Minister who has the constitutional authority to allot ministries.

Even as official word is awaited on portfolio allocation, speculation was already rife. While R Ashoka is touted to get the coveted Bengaluru development portfolio, the department former Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa had retained, the turncoats from the JDS-Congress combine, who joined the BJP in 2019, are expected to retain their former ministries.

Some of the heavyweight portfolios included Dr K Sudhakar with Medical Education and Health, B C Patil with Agriculture, S T Somashekhar with Cooperation department. Sources in the party suggest that the Sangh has pushed for party and ideological loyalists - many of them debutante ministers - to be given plum portfolios.

Disgruntled MLAs plan meet at Jarkiholi's home

BELAGAVI: Several disgruntled legislators of the BJP, who could not make it to the Bommai Cabinet, were expected to hold a meeting at the residence of former water resources minister Ramesh Jarkiholi on Friday night. According to sources, several members from the group of 17 MLAs who joined the BJP from the JDS-Congress coalition were expected to attend the meeting, besides a few ruling party MLAs. According to sources, several MLAs are upset over not getting a cabinet berth. As Ramesh is yet to get a clean chit in the alleged CD case, the Jarkiholi brothers wanted the BJP to induct MLA Balachandra Jarkiholi into the cabinet. But the party ignored him too. Several issues with regard to the neglect of defected legislators were expected to come up for discussion at the meeting, sources added. ENS

CM discusses water sharing with Pawar, Maha minister

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru, Belagavi

NCP chief Sharad Pawar called on Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai at the latter's residence in Bengaluru on Friday

A crucial meeting between the Karnataka and Maharashtra governments to exclusively discuss the issue of water sharing between the two states and other issues related to inter-state water disputes is likely to be held in New Delhi soon.

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Friday held separate meetings with NCP chief Sharad Pawar and Maharashtra Water Resources Minister Jayant Patil at his home office 'Krishna' in Bengaluru. The Chief Minister's Office said Pawar's visit was a courtesy call and they discussed river water sharing and floods.

After the meeting, Pawar tweeted, "On my visit to Bengaluru, I got a call from Karnataka CM Bommai who expressed his wish to meet me. Keeping the respect of his position in mind, I decided to go and pay a courtesy call on him." Without referring either to water issue or floods he said, "I am thankful for his warm hospitality and hoping that the two states would continue to work together with a cooperative vision in the years to come."

According to sources, Bommai and Pawar discussed various inter-state issues, mainly sharing of dam and river waters between the two states. The leaders also stressed on the need for greater coordination between authorities on both sides to avoid flooding of rivers and dams along the border during monsoon.

During the meeting with Patil, Bommai discussed several issues to tackle the recurring floods along the border and measures to be taken to coordinate effectively and prevent any calamity. Both leaders also held talks on inter-state projects like Doodhganga and Phase III of the Upper Krishna Project.

Bommai said his government would want to reach an amicable solution with regard to sharing of waters irrigation on priority. Sources said that the meeting, to be held in New Delhi, will be able to help both states to overcome several problems in the implementation of inter-state water projects.

BJP tweet on ED raid sparks war of words

If it is about disproportionate income, then the Income Tax Department should inquire. Only if there is money laundering, the ED steps in. I will speak to Zameer and find out

DK Shivakumar, KPCC Chief

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Bengaluru

KARNATAKA Pradesh Congress Committee (KPCC) president D K Shivakumar on Friday expressed surprise over the Enforcement Directorate raid on party leader Zameer Ahmed Khan. "If it is about disproportionate income, then the Income Tax Department should inquire. Only if there is money laundering, the ED steps in. I will speak to Zameer and find out," he said.

In a related development, the BJP on Friday tweeted that Congress leader Siddaramaiah was a "beneficiary" of the ED raids on Khan. The BJP seemed to imply that Siddaramaiah, who was looking for a safe seat for the 2023 election, stands to benefit from the action on Khan. In the tweet, the BJP said Siddaramaiah was criticizing the raid as politically motivated, only for the sake of it.

This prompted angry responses from Congress leaders. Former Legislative Council Chairman V R Sudarshan said, "The BJP's tweets are insensitive, inhuman and not in good taste. Speaking poorly about a mass leader like Siddaramaiah and maligning him on personal grounds doesn't augur well for the party. About Siddaramaiah contesting from Chamarajpet, Zameer himself has offered it, so where is the need for such comments?"

Former MP V S Ugrappa said, "The BJP is scared of Siddaramaiah because he is a mass leader and they are trying to malign him. People will teach them a lesson at the right time." "There have been allegations of corruption against B S Yediyurappa by his own partymen like Basanagouda Patil Yatnal and A H Vishwanath who have publicly issued statements. Why are there no raid on him," he questioned.

IN TIMES OF PANDEMIC

BJP workers felicitate new ministers, ignore Covid-19 norms

PRAKASH SAMAGA @ Udupi

DESPITE repeated instructions by Udupi DC G Jagadish, particularly to politicians to not hold events that could turn into Covid-19 superspreaders, the district BJP organised a felicitation programme in a hall in Ambagilu here on Friday. The programme was held to felicitate newly inducted ministers V Sunil Kumar and Kota Srinivas Poojary.

Party workers congregated in large numbers to welcome the leaders, with scant regard for social distancing.

Sources said that when the party unit had gone to seek permission from the SP's office some days ago, the latter instructed department officials to send nodal officers to the venue to ensure that Covid-appropriate behaviour was followed. But all regulations were compromised throughout the event.

The programme was a low-key affair because of the Covid-19 pandemic, or the party workers would have celebrate it in a big way

K Raghupathi Bhat, Udupi MLA

Udupi MLA K Raghupathi Bhat, however, claimed that the programme was a low-key affair because of the pandemic, or the workers would have celebrate it in a big way. The organisers kept requesting party workers not to rush to the dais when a bunch of party workers climbed up to felicitate the minister with garlands, but the request was not heard.

Congress leader Ramesh Kanchan took to social media to vent his ire against the BJP's felicitation programme, saying that ministers violating Covid protocol made by their own party's government is not a good sign. Additional SP Kumarachandra said that nodal officers were deputed by the district administration to check if violations were taking place at the venue.

String of polls next major challenge for Team Bommai

ASHWINI M SRIPAD
@ Bengaluru

NEARLY a month after the buzz around leadership change in Karnataka started, the dust has finally settled with Basavaraj Bommai taking over as Chief Minister on July 28 and inducting 29 ministers in his cabinet a week later, on August 4.

Now, the next challenge before Bommai and the BJP is to win a series of elections in the state, including polls to the zilla and taluk panchayats and urban local bodies (ULBs) and ultimately, the 2023 Assembly election.

During B S Yediyurappa's tenure as chief minister, the state witnessed bypolls to 19 Assembly constituencies and the Belagavi Lok Sabha seat. The BJP won 16 of these bypolls. The saffron party had also claimed that candidates backed by it performed well in the gram panchayat elections held in December 2020.

With the court directing the State Election Commission to hold ULB elections, the latter is all set to conduct polls to 52 ULBs, mostly in North Karnataka.

State Election Commissioner Basavaraju told TNIE that polls are due for ULBs, including Hubballi-Dharwad, Kalaburgi and Belagavi city corporations, and Doddaballapur and Tarikere municipalities. "Elections to 52 ULBs will be conducted at the earliest," he added.

The State Election Commission is also determined to hold elections for taluk and zilla panchayats in October or November. These elections, which were due in May-June, could not be held owing to the second wave of the Covid-19 pandemic. "We have initiated the poll process. Draft reservation is ready and objections have been called for. Once we announce the final list, the election dates will be announced after 45 days. Polls are likely to be held in October or November," Basavaraju added.

We have initiated the poll process. Draft reservation is ready and objections have been called for. Once we announce the final list, the election dates will be announced after 45 days

Basavaraju, State Election Commissioner

Bypolls to Sindagi and Hangal Assembly constituencies are also due following the deaths of JDS MLA MC Managuli and BJP MLA C M Udasi, respectively. Sindagi is in Haveri district, the home turf of Bommai, and winning the seat is a matter of prestige for the CM. Also, elections to BBMP are due, but the matter is before the court. Bommai had inducted seven legislators from Bengaluru as ministers with an eye on the civic body polls.

RESERVATION ROW

Valmikis plan rally to press for hike in quota

K SHIVA KUMAR@ Mysuru

EVEN as the new Cabinet headed by Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai is yet to take final shape, heads of various mutts in the state have begun raising demands to increase the reservation quota for their respective communities.

Recently, Basava Jaya Mrutyunjaya Swami of the Lingayat Panchamashali Peetha at Kudalasangama had "reminded" the State Government of the September 15 deadline for it to consider according 2A category status for the community.

Now, Sri Prasannananda Puri Swami of Valmiki Gurupeetha has demanded that the government increase reservation for the Valmiki community from the present 3.5 per cent to 7 per cent. He expressed displeasure over the previous B S Yediyurappa government for not increasing reservation for the community based on the recommendations of the Justice H N Nagamohan Das Committee. He said that Yediyurappa had assured them of addressing their concerns, but betrayed them and is now "relaxing at home."

The mutt also plans to hold a mega rally in Bengaluru to send out a strong message to both the Union and the State Governments. He said the community will also oppose government acquiring land in localities dominated by SCs and STs. "We are the fourth largest community in the state, but we have not got adequate representation in the new Cabinet. Lingayats have got 8 ministers and Vokkaligas seven. But only one Nayaka has been made a minister. We want at least three ministers from the community," he insisted. The seer said that those pointing to the 50 per cent upper limit on reservations have not implemented the Supreme Court's directives of providing reservation in education and employment to landless SCs and STs.

Stressing on the need for unity among the Nayakas, he said that their decades-old struggle has forced the government include Parivaras and Talawaras in the ST list.

Wait gets longer for B'luru's poor to get roof over their heads

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @ Bengaluru

THE wait just got longer for those who were waiting to get a roof over their heads under the State Government's ambitious urban housing project. With the change of guard in the government, the allotment of houses, which had been hanging fire for five years, has been delayed further. The beneficiaries were hoping that the houses will allotted in Bengaluru on August 15.

The Karnataka Government's plan to provide houses for the urban poor, with a target of constructing one lakh houses in Bengaluru, was initiated in 2016. The houses would cost Rs 5 lakh each for the general category, and Rs 4.2 lakh for SC and ST beneficiaries. In May, former Housing Minister V Somanna had announced that the first 6,000 houses will be handed over to the beneficiaries on August 15 by B S Yediyurappa.

But, with Yediyurappa's resignation, the process of allotment has been delayed yet again. According to CMO sources, the file was supposed to be placed before Yediurppa's last cabinet meeting for approval, but since there was uncertainty over his continuation, it was withdrawn. About 22,000 houses are in different stages of completion and the allotment file is before Chief Secretary P Ravikumar, who was, however, unavailable for comment.

Sources in the Housing Department told TNIE that more than 65,000 applications have been received and selecting the eligible beneficiaries will take some time. "If the process had been initiated a couple of months earlier, we would have had a list of eligible beneficiaries by now and we could have started allotting houses. But now, we are waiting for the new minister to take charge," the source added. The scheme was initially announced by the then Siddaramiah government. In 2018, the State Government had called for tenders to construct one lakh houses, but acquiring land proved to be a huge task for the authorities due to land crunch in the city. The project, however, has now gained momentum. Officials of the Rajiv Gandhi Housing Corporation Ltd said most of the encroachments have been cleared and construction of 46,499 houses under Phase-I has commenced at 46 locations on 316 acres around the city.

The Commercial Street police have arrested a man and seized over 8.1 kg of ganja worth Rs 2 lakh from him. Thamim from Chittoor district in Andhra Pradesh works as a truck driver and had brought the contraband from his hometown. He was arrested while trying to sell ganja in Shivaji Nagar

NIA arrests key ISIS man from Bhatkal

Jufri handled online propaganda to radicalise Muslim youth in India, says agency

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

THE National Investigation Agency (NIA) on Friday arrested Jufri Jawhar Damudi (30), a resident of Bhatkal, in the ISIS recruitment case (RC 14/2021/NIA/DLI). He is the younger brother of Adnan Hasan Damudi, who was arrested for ISIS-related activities in 2016 and is currently under detention in a separate NIA case (RC 04/2016/NIA/DLI.)

Adnan was deported from the UAE in January 2016 for alleged ISIS links. He was said to be close to Sultan Armar, also from Bhatkal, and chief recruiter of ISIS in India. Sultan and his sibling Shafi were close to ISIS founder Abu Baqr Al Baghdadi. They were killed fighting for ISIS in Syria and Afghanistan. The NIA registered the case on June 29 at the NIA police station, New Delhi, in connection with the conspiracy of the Islamic State of Iraq and Syria (ISIS) to "radicalise and recruit impressionable Muslim youth in India to wage violent jihad against the Indian State", stated the NIA spokesperson.

According to the Central counter-terrorism law enforcement agency, Jufri was in touch with the ISIS leadership, currently operating out of Af-Pak region, who provided him propaganda material and gave directions for its dissemination. "He had created multiple pseudonymous identities on encrypted chat platforms and was also a member of various online propaganda channels of ISIS. A cyber entity 'Abu Hazir Al Badri', a key operative of ISIS, who is involved in translation of ISIS propaganda magazine 'Voice of Hind' to South Indian languages, and its further dissemination, was identified as Jufri. This cyber identity was also used to radicalise and recruit people," the NIA added.

The agency said that ISIS terrorists operating from various conflict zones along with ISIS cadres in India have created a network by assuming pseudo-online identities, wherein ISIS-related propaganda material is disseminated for radicalising and recruiting members to the ISIS fold. On July 11, the NIA had conducted multiple searches in Jammu and Kashmir and arrested three accused persons – Umar Nisar, Tanveer Ahmad Bhat and Rameez Ahmad Lone of Achabal in Anantnag.

During the searches on Friday, NIA seized a large number of digital devices such as mobile phones, hard disks, SD cards etc. With Jufri's arrest, the spotlight is back on Bhatkal, which had gained notoriety after two fugitive terrorists -- Riyaz and Iqbal Shahbandari, alias Bhatkal brothers -- founded the proscribed terrorist organisation, Indian Mujahideen (IM), and are wanted in almost all terror attacks in India in the last two decades.

The Damudi brothers are the third set of alleged terrorist siblings after the Shahbandaris and Armar brothers, from the coastal town. Riyaz and Iqbal are holed up in Pakistan under the protection of the Inter-Services Intelligence (ISI).

Cops nab 4 in Hennur, seize drugs worth ₹6 cr

ENS @Bengaluru

CENTRAL Crime Branch (CCB) sleuths arrested a gang of four people, including a Nigerian, and seized drugs worth Rs 6 crore. A special team conducted raids on their houses in Hennur and Byadarahalli and recovered ganja, ecstasy and other substances weighing 15 kg. A week ago, the CCB had arrested seven people, including two Nigerians, and seized drugs such as MDMA, LSD and cocaine, worth Rs 1.05 crore.

A CCB police officer said that police raided an apartment in Hennur, caught the drug peddlers and seized hashish oil, marijuana, charas balls and hydro weed seedlings. An SUV, a bike and two mobile phones were seized.

Prime accused Nabaran Chakma, from Assam, was selling drugs to students of private colleges and software engineers for three years. A year ago, police had raided his house in Ramamurthynagar, but Chakma had managed to escape, while his accomplice, Sinto Thomas, was nabbed.

Onyeka Emmanuel James (31) from Nigeria was arrested with Ecstasy. MDMA pills and LSD strips. Soon after their arrest, City Police Commissioner Kamal Pant tweeted that Bengaluru City Police was committed to the war against narcotics, and drugs worth Rs 6 crore, including 15kg hashish oil, 11kg ganja, 530 gm of charas, and four hydro-cannabis plants were seized by the CCB's narcotics wing.

Quasi-judicial officers to get video call facility

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE state government on Friday assured the Karnataka High Court that it will provide video conference facility for hearings to quasi-judicial authorities in a phased manner through the Centre for e-Governance.

The government placed the assurance on record before a division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice N S Sanjay Gowda in response to the directions issued by the court.

Taking note that the functioning of quasi-judicial authorities were being affected due to the lockdown, resulting in inconvenience to litigants, the court had issued directions to the state government to take steps to provide video conference facilities to them.

Third wave could be 13 times worse than the 2nd

DR Manjunath CN, a TAC member who briefed the newly appointed Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai, too said population-based seroprevalence studies can provide better estimates.

"Wave-3 impact on children (Age 0 -17 yrs) could be up to 13 times (median) more than wave-2," the report said.

Experts from the committee, requesting anonymity, said that after three detailed presentations and due deliberations, it was concluded that a high number of children as compared to the second wave are likely to be affected in the State. Adequate clinical preparedness is needed to manage the exigency, they advised.

The committee said that schools can be reopened post September 2021 only after assessing the Covid situation. But the government on Friday announced that schools should be reopened in a graded manner from August 23.

Prime reasons for next wave

The TAC report stated it is clear from genome sequencing data that the second wave was driven by the Delta variant and the "emergence of new variants and poor social distancing are most likely to be the reasons for wave-3".

The third wave is anticipated even with a strong national seroprevalence. "A significant increase in daily vaccination capacity is needed. The vaccination rate should be increased by over 50 per cent," committee members said.

Health minister says most infected with Delta variant, lockdown can't be lifted

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@T'Puram

THE Covid tally in the state is likely to go up more than two-fold in the coming days, it was stated in the assembly. Health Minister Veena George told the House on Friday that around 90 per cent of Covid patients are infected with the Delta variant, which is more powerful and can spread quickly. With the third wave forecast just around the corner, and the state yet to fully recover from the second wave, the restrictions cannot be lifted completely.

"The government is of the view that the restrictions should be completely removed only after ensuring the safety of the lives of people. The state will have to pay a heavy price if the restrictions were lifted suddenly. Moreover, the curbs are based on the directions of the Supreme Court," the minister said while replying to an adjournment motion by Opposition member K Babu.

Moving the notice, Babu said that the new set of restrictions posed a challenge to common sense. "The minister had earlier told the House that Covid-free certificate is desirable for people visiting shops and establishments. But when the order was issued by the chief secretary, he made this mandatory. Who exactly should the people trust? The new restrictions are aimed at slapping the public with fines in the name of Covid," he said.

Opposition leader V D Satheeshan in his speech before the UDF members staged a walkout said the new restrictions will lead to a police raj in the state, which is already witnessing extreme high-handedness on the part of the police . Under the current circumstances, around 57 per cent of people who have not taken their first dose of vaccine will have to spend Rs 500 just to visit a shop. A female sales attendant in her 20s, who is not vaccinated, will have to shell out around Rs 5,000 a month to go for work as per the current restrictions, he said.

The government should not ignore the advice of prominent people who made practical suggestions, he said. Later, the Opposition protested against government's refusal to discuss issue.

Truck with ₹6 cr worth mobiles waylaid in Kolar

V VELAYUDHAM @Kolar

A gang looted Redmi cellphones worth ₹6.39 crore from a container truck transporting them, near Devarayasamudra, under Mulbagal police limits on Thursday.

Kolar SP Kishore Babu said a case was registered with Mulbagal police, on the complaint of the container driver, Suresh. Suresh told the media on Friday that he is a resident of Hassan, and had left Kancheepuram industrial area at 3.30pm Thursday, after loading the consignment, which was to be delivered to a godown in Hoskote, Bengaluru Rural.

Suresh said he drove without a break to reach Nangli checkpost on the Karnataka border, where he went to the washroom, and got back behind the wheel. After crossing Nangli checkpost, a car tried to overtake his container a few times, and all of a sudden, waylaid the vehicle.

He was forced to stop the container, and immediately, three Hindi-speaking men jumped into the cabin and threatened him. They pulled Suresh out, dragged him 300 metres into agricultural land, tied his hands and legs with rope, plastered his mouth and left him.

According to Suresh, he struggled the whole night, and rolled on the ground to reach the highway on Friday morning. A few people who noticed him removed the ropes and plaster, and he lodged the complaint.

SP Suresh Babu said the container was found near Neralahalli, which is close to the incident spot. The miscreants had shifted all the mobile boxes to other vehicles.

'Such brain problems need urgent evaluation'

"WHENEVER one notices a confused state of mind, sudden difficulty in speech, walking and balancing the body, one should suspect it to be a brain problem and should not ignore it. Medically, speaking and language disorders are called Aphasias. In the case of the IT professional, because of her early presentation and timely treatment, we could treat and save her," said Dr Venkataramana.

He explained that sudden difficulty in doing calculations is called Acalculia. "All such problems need urgent evaluation. Around 37 per cent of neurological problems are related to stroke presenting with a certain form of paralysis. Among these, conditions like Aphasias and Acalculia are very rare. Early treatment can solve the issue and save lives," he said.

Rushikonda temple to open from August 13

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Visakhapatnam

THE Sri Venkateswara Swamy temple built by Tirumala Tirupati Devasthanams on a sprawling 10 acre site atop a hill in Visakhapatnam's Rushikonda will be thrown open to public from August 13.

Purnahuti will be performed on August 12 and devotees will be allowed for darshan after its likely inauguration by Chief Minister YS Jagan Mohan Reddy. Construction of the ₹25 crore temple began in 2018 on the hill between Gayatri and GITAM colleges. The temple is a near replica of the Tirumala temple as the presiding deity and idol of Anjaneya Swamy along with mini temples of Bhudevi and Sri Devi are also ready. Srivari padalu, revered by devotees the most, and other spiritual sculptures were made at TTD's SV Institute of Traditional Sculpture and Architecture.

The temple has a prayer hall with the capacity to accommodate 150 people, a function hall for conducting marriages with dining space and facility for devotees to take rest.

> The six-day vedic rituals will start with ankurarpanam on Sunday. The idol of Sri Venkateswara Swamy will be installed amid special rituals by Vedic pundits and priests on August 11

A special counter will be set up at the entrance for issuing tickets and also there will be a separate counter for prasadam sale. A 500 metre ghat road was laid so that the vehicles can reach the hilltop with ease.

Two priests have been appointed by TTD for conducting the daily rituals and they will be provided accommodation at the hilltop.

Meanwhile, all arrangements have been made for the consecration of the temple. The six-day vedic rituals will start with ankurarpanam on Sunday. The idol of Sri Venkateswara Swamy will be installed amid special rituals by Vedic pundits and priests on August 11. The rituals will conclude with maha smaprokshana at 9.45 am on August 13. Arrangements are also made keeping in view of the chief minister's visit for mahasamprokshana.

Vocal for local: TTD to promote desi cows

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Tirumala

WITH a noble aim to protect and promote indegenious cow breeds, Tirumala Tirupati Devasthanams (TTD) had decided to introduce a new seva -- Navaneetha Seva -- and involve more philanthropists in this Goseva activity, said the Specified Authority Chairman and TTD executive officer Dr KS Jawahar Reddy.

The maiden meeting of the Specified Authority of TTD was held at Annamayya Bhavan in Tirumala on Friday under the Chairmanship of Jawahar Reddy along with the Convenor and Additional EO of TTD AV Dharma Reddy.

Briefing media persons, after the meeting, the TTD EO said, as a part of its noble mission of saving 'Desi Bovine', the meeting has deliberated on three important tasks -- protection and promotion of desi breeds, Goadharita (cow based) Naivedyam to Srivaru and promotion of organic farming with cow products (Panchagavya).

For preparation of Naivedyam to Srivarul, 30 kgs of cow ghee is required every day and to prepare that ghee 1,200 liters of milk is required per day. It was decided to have seven indegenios breeds of cows along with locally available three breeds of cows for milk production. Anywhere between 250 to 300 cows (indegenious breeds) will be kept in Tirumala for the purpose.

The executive officer said TTD will receive Desi Cow Ghee as a donation from the devotees and added that 25 Gir cows were donated to Tirumala temple.

NEED TO CUT FUEL TAX TO REIN IN INFLATION DEMON

At times, those trying to help can end up hurting us the most. Policymakers taking on rising inflation is a case in point. On Friday, the RBI raised retail inflation projections for FY22 by 60 bps to 5.7%. In fact, even for the first quarter of next fiscal, it's expected to continue hugging the higher bound of 2-6% target. The central bank, keeping a ceaseless vigil on growth—designating inflation to an understudy—maintained that the persistent price rise is transitory, caused largely due to volatile global commodity prices, especially crude oil and demand-supply mismatches. But what counts as 'temporary' impacts differently for citizens and the central bank. As Deputy Governor Michael Patra explained, headline inflation hurtling past 6% post-Covid will follow a glide-path reduction stretching multiple quarters. It means policymakers can escape with a whole skin as long as the annual average inflation print cuts below 6%. But for households, if prices peak for over 12 months without missing a beat, its effects are both disastrous and permanent.

Inflation-adjusted real rates have been negative for over a year, eroding returns from bank deposits and incomes, and prompting savers towards riskier assets. With real incomes falling, the bite is even harder for rural consumers—the segment on which the central bank is pinning hopes of a private consumption bounce-back. But there is little that the RBI can do to tame prices at this juncture as tinkering with policy rates will only damage growth prospects.

This leaves us with the Central government, which is holding a wild card (fuel taxes) that can soften inflationary pressures instantly. With direct tax collections in Q1 shooting up an unprecedented 112% and net tax revenue, after adjusting for state transfers, jumping above 200%, the Centre clearly has enough elbow room to roll back excise duty hikes on petrol and diesel. This view was seconded by none other than the RBI, besides others. Just last fiscal, the Centre mopped up a mighty ₹3.5 lakh crore in fuel taxes. It's high time to pare them down.

ODISHA SHOWS THE WAY TO SUPPORT SPORT

It's the business end of the Olympics and the business of predicting the performances of our athletes has been laid bare. Shooters were expected to kick-start a rush of medals for India, but that never happened. With it, all double-digit tallies went out of the window. There was another sport where predictions were wide off the mark, but in a pleasant way. While the men's hockey team was expected to reach the quarterfinal and maybe battle for one of the minor medals, the women's team wasn't even expected to get out of the pool stages.

Clubbed in a pool with the likes of Great Britain and Netherlands, dignified defeats were expected. Yet, the women have likely kick-started a revolution with their performances. It's not just the results that will inspire the next generation to take up a hockey stick, it's the backstories these players have. For example, Lalremsiami is from Mizoram, not a traditional hotbed for hockey. She could now be a totem for young boys and girls from Mizoram who insist on dreaming a different dream. It's the same with the men's team. We were told that hockey was a finished sport, that people don't want it, that the romance was lost forever. Yet, people woke up before 7 am to follow them. The men's first medal in 41 years will show young kids that the sport, if given the right environment to thrive, can produce results.

The right environment is a mix of support staff, picking the right players rather than going by reputation and trusting the process. After several missteps, Hockey India has avoided sacking both the men's and women's senior coaches for no reason. That has allowed a degree of trust to develop between the coaches and players. There has been ample assistance from the Sports Authority of India and one state that really helped the sport organise big-ticket events is Odisha. When other states were reluctant to host events, Odisha stepped forward. It has even been sponsoring the teams from before the World Cup in 2018. The next step in this process is equally important. The only thing that creates a winning culture is more medals. The World Cup, Commonwealth Games and Asian Games are in the next 16 months. Otherwise, the success at the Olympics could be forgotten or may be written off as an accident.

In order to understand the clash between Assam and Mizoram, we have to go back to the British colonial government's outlook to frontier management

MAKING SENSE OF BOUNDARY DISPUTES IN THE NORTHEAST

PRADIP PHANJOUBAM

Editor, Imphal Review of Arts and Politics

AMIT BANDRE

Much has already been said about the atrocious clash between Assam and Mizoram police on July 26 that left six policemen and a civilian dead on the Assam side besides several scores more injured. The sequence of events that led to the deadly confrontation is by now familiar and it will serve no purpose joining the allegations and counter-allegations on who started the fight or whose action amounted to a provocation warranting deadly retaliations. The only thing certain is that though both sides used firearms freely in the unthinkable clash, fatal casualties as well as most injuries were on the Assam side, indicating either greater intent for damage or else better aims of those pulling the triggers from the Mizoram side.

The dispute has a history, specific as well as general. Of the specifics, graphic accounts are already available. Hence a look at the general may be more meaningful in putting this clash in perspective, as well as similar frictions Assam has with all other hill states of the Northeast except Tripura and Manipur. This is so as all these states other than the last two were part of the British province of Assam with its capital in Shillong (now capital of Meghalaya) and this arrangement continued after Independence till 1972.

But even while they remained districts of the British Assam province, the aloofness of the eastern Himalayan mountainous massif, which later became Mizoram, Nagaland, Arunachal Pradesh and Meghalaya states, was administratively acknowledged and separated from Assam's revenue plains by what came to be known as the Inner Line, promulgated by the Bengal Eastern Frontier Regulation of 1873. The territory beyond this line was claimed but only loosely administered under the broad gaze of the Governor and not made part of the regular provincial administration. A 'regulation', as colonial author Edward A Gait explains in his book A History of Assam, is a law made by an executive decision alone, bypassing the more elaborate legislative process, and is generally meant for frontier administration. These are more amenable to changes and indeed, the extent of the Inner Line was changed a number of times simply on the strength of official gazette notifications. Assamese academic Bodhisattva Kar has more details on these changes in his essay When Was the Postcolonial? (in Beyond Counterinsurgency).

These changes became more frequent with the growth of the tea industry in Assam making planters always hungry to claim more plantation spaces in the foothills, but this tendency for an upwards push was prevalent even before the Inner Line came into existence. This was one of the reasons for the devastating raid by Lushai tribesmen (now Mizo) at the Alexandrapur tea garden, leaving its owner Winchester dead and his six-year-old daughter Mary Winchester abducted, prompting the British to launch the punitive 'Lushai Expedition' towards the end of 1871. What was witnessed on July 26 on the Assam-Mizoram border was indeed reminiscent of the Alexandrapur carnage.

It would also be relevant to note here that British Assam's territories beyond the Inner Line were originally termed as Backward Tract and largely unadministered, but reforms introduced by The Government of India Act, 1935, redesignated them into 'Excluded Areas' and 'Partially Excluded Areas'. Hence, Khasi, Jaintia and Garo Hills (now Meghalaya) and Mikir Hills (which has remained in Assam) were then deemed more familiarised with the British system and brought under the 'Partially Excluded' category. They were to have representatives in the provincial Assembly, but by nomination of the Governor and not by popular mandate. The 'Excluded Areas' remained as before without any representative in the provincial legislature but under the charge of the Governor. After Independence, these territories beyond the Inner Line remained districts of Assam, but under special autonomy provisions provided by the 6th Schedule of the Constitution, except for the Naga Hills district (now Nagaland), where an insurgency had broken out and its leaders were not ready to accept anything less than sovereignty. Short of sovereignty, in 1963, the Naga Hills were amalgamated with Tuensang and Mon region of NEFA (Arunachal Pradesh) to become the first to be bifurcated from Assam as the full-fledged state of Nagaland. A decade later, from 1972 and in the years that followed, after bitter friction in the 1960s over the issue of making Assamese the medium of education, Mizoram, Meghalaya and Arunachal Pradesh too became separate states.

This British colonial government's outlook to frontier management is very well spelt out in Lord Curzon's Romanes Lecture titled Frontiers in 1907, two years after his retirement as Viceroy of India. In this lecture, India's eastern frontiers figure prominently. One of the many interesting things that he said is that the idea of a demarcated, delineated border was unknown outside of Europe before Europeans took it to the colonies. Jurist A G Noorani in his characteristic style provides an example of this beautifully in his book India-China Boundary Problem 1846-1947. When Kashmir came to be in their possession without a fight after their victory in the First Sikh War in 1846, the British had a boundary problem—this precisely was that there was no boundary. As Europeans, the British were so used to the understanding of the modern state as a container, which Peter J Taylor in his essay The State as Container: Territoriality in the Modern World-System popularised, and therefore were uneasy to imagine territory without the confines of hard, well-guarded boundaries; thus began the hunt for a boundary for Kashmir. In the eastern frontier, this very much was also the problem. Hence came the Inner Line, Excluded and Partially Included areas, etc. Curzon even says that the idea of 'protectorate states', 'suzerainty', 'buffers', etc., either evolved or were fine-tuned in the process of calibration of British interests in territories, much of which they did not want to directly possess but all the same did not want other European rivals to start showing interest in. Curzon states Tibet as the most sophisticated example of British's frontier policy, exemplified in the St. Petersburg Convention 1907 with Russia. In the east too, Curzon sketches a picture of how the British were looking to replicate a frontier policy similar to what resulted in the Durand Line in the west, and build a three-layered buffer between themselves and the French in Indochina with several protectorate states, wild tracts such as those within the Inner Line etc., in between.

> The dispute shows the continued struggle of indigenous communities to come to terms with the need to reconcile the amorphous boundaries of their homelands with the modern state's land revenue system and its hard boundaries

From this vantage, the interstate boundary problems in the Northeast demonstrate a continued struggle of indigenous communities to come to terms with the need to reconcile the older notional, amorphous and permeable boundaries of homelands they were familiar with and the modern state's land revenue system with its hard and precise boundaries. The challenge then is to look for a seamless integration of boundaries that once expanded and contracted, reciprocal to the waxing and waning of power and influence of chieftains, and the reality of the state as a container and its land and land ownership paradigm. Appropriate legislations must be thought of to address both concerns.

It is against this backdrop that the recent clash at the Assam-Mizoram border must be understood. In one of the adjustments to the Inner Line in 1875, two years after it came into existence, the current disputed strip of about 500 sq. km of forest land was made part of the Lushai Hills, but revenue collection was left in the hands of the Assam proper administration as it was easier. In 1933, another adjustment left this land outside the Lushai Hills district. All this is understandable as they were happening inside the undivided Assam Province. Now that Mizoram and Assam are two different states, the former wants the 1875 alignment as their boundary and Assam considers the 1933 adjustment as the more legitimate and rational one.

A HIGH ENERGY COLLIDER ON THE MOON?

PRATIVA PRITIMITA

Research Scientist at the Department of Physics, IIT Bombay

As a kid, I believed that the moon is a land of fairies, thanks to my mother's bedtime stories, and if I behave well, then Chandamama would come down on earth to take me to the fairyland. The fairies popped up in my dreams quite often until I grew up and learnt that the lunar surface was too hostile to support any life as concluded from the Apollo missions. My fantasy of going to the moon had rested in peace until I recently came across a preprint paper titled, "A very high energy hadron collider on moon" submitted for publication to the highly reputed journal Nature Physics.

Let me explain why this paper is interesting. Though the idea of building a discovery machine on the moon sounds too futuristic, it is worth a thought since it comes at a time when NASA is aiming to establish a permanent presence there and space exploration has gathered pace like never before. Moreover, a lot of fundamental questions about our universe might be answered with such a gigantic particle collider that is supposed to be a 1,000 times more powerful than the most powerful collider on earth, the CERN Large Hadron Collider (LHC). This proposed collider is named Circular Collider on the Moon (CCM) by the authors, one from Duke University, US, and the other from CERN, Switzerland, who have laid out the siting, construction and operation plans for it.

Before moving on to the plan of the CCM, let's understand why we need high energy particle colliders and how a collider like the LHC works. The LHC is a ring of superconducting magnets placed underground in a circular tunnel of circumference 27 km. Inside it, beams of protons travelling at nearly the speed of light in opposite directions collide with each other and the resulting events are recorded. The study of these events sometimes leads to the discovery of new particles and helps us understand the origin of the universe better. However, some secrets of the universe can be addressed at an energy scale much higher than the LHC's. Though a number of more powerful colliders on earth are planned like the Future Circular Collider at CERN and the Super Proton-Proton Collider in China, the moon collider would be far more superior compared to these in terms of energy. According to the authors, the CCM would be wrapped around a great circle of the moon of circumference 11,000 km and can have a collision energy of 14 Peta electron volt.

The major challenges in building such a gigantic structure, keeping the logistics aside, are the lunar surface temperature, the length of lunar days and nights, and frequent meteoroid strikes on the moon. To avoid these challenges, the scientists have proposed three different scenarios. To accelerate protons, the CCM needs superconducting magnets that can operate at low temperature compared to room temperature on earth, whereas the temperature on the lunar surface can reach nearly 127 degrees Celsius during a lunar day. Thus, the CCM can be built on the lunar surface and operated only during lunar nights when the temperature drops to -173 degrees Celsius. However, this would lead to long stretches of non-operation since the length of a lunar day is equivalent to 13.5 days on the earth. The second choice is to build it by digging and covering a trench a few meters below the surface so that it can be operated both during lunar days and nights, since according to the measurements from Apollo 15 and 17 missions, the temperature fluctuations due to lunar days and nights are negligible 50 cm below the moon's surface. But this scenario would still not make it damage-proof against meteoroid strikes. The third choice that can protect it from these strikes is to bore it a few hundred meters under the lunar surface.

> The major challenges in building such a gigantic structure, keeping the logistics aside, are the lunar surface temperature, the length of lunar days and nights, and frequent meteoroid strikes on the moon

Now coming to the power source that can propel such a huge machine, the most promising would be solar power, which is abundantly available on the moon due to the absence of an atmosphere. This can be harnessed by building a Dyson belt around the equator of the moon that can not only provide power to the collider but also potentially send power to earth. The scientists are hopeful that if the progress on the necessary preceding technologies like transport between earth and moon, and solar powering of the moon continue apace, the construction of the collider on the moon can start as early as the 2070s.

The next few decades are going to be exciting in the context of lunar exploration as NASA plans to set foot on the lunar surface again with its Artemis Program, China and Russia plan to build a moon base together, and the private space industry continues to grow. With nations, industries and academia working together towards making the moon our next laboratory, we stand at the edge of a new age and I am awestruck to see how our research has moved into the realm of fantasy.

Proud moment for India

The England women's hockey team was made to sweat to win the bronze against the Indian team in the Tokyo Olympics. Notwithstanding the fact that India lost, it was a very proud moment for the nation. It was the first time our women's hockey team reached the semifinal. Hats off to the players. It is high time we prioritised hockey as much as we do cricket so that both the men's and women's teams find a place on victory podiums in many future championships and Olympics.

Rajamoni Chelladurai, Tirunelveli

Hockey romance rekindled

The hockey romance in the country has been rekindled by the Indian men's hockey team winning the bronze medal in the Olympics. The team defeating Germany was an extraordinary event for the nation. The women's team too played an excellent game, making it to the semis for the first time.

K V Raghuram, Wayanad

Kudos to women's team

Our women's hockey players seemed all set to emulate their male counterparts this Olympics, but the Great Britain team managed to hold them at bay and eventually triumphed by a 4-3 margin. Full credit to captain Rani Rampal and her team for getting to this stage despite the disheartening losses initially in the group stage. It is time women's hockey is treated on par with the men's team.

C V Aravind, Bengaluru

Naming it after a legend

It is in the fitness of things that the Rajiv Gandhi Khel Ratna Award has been renamed after Major Dhyan Chand. Hockey legend Dhyan Chand's contribution to the sport needs no introduction. It is simply appropriate that the highest sporting honour of the country is named after one of its greatest ever sportspersons.

Increase vaccine coverage

This is with reference to Covid control conundrum of Kerala explained (Aug 6). The article highlights how Kerala, despite being the best performer in containing the virus and its variants, is unreasonably criticised over many parameters. The need of the hour is to increase vaccine coverage on a war footing. At the same time, the state should not indulge in knee-jerk reactions or impracticable steps that will do more harm than good.

Dharmarajan A K, Thalassery

No logic in new strategy

This is with reference to Kerala's untested strategy shouldn't cause more harm (Aug 6). The Kerala government's new Covid strategy is a disappointing one. There's no logic in demanding vaccination certificates as a majority of people are finding it difficult to get registered or inoculated due to various reasons, including shortage of the jab.

SC RAPS CBI, IB FOR NEGLECTING JUDGE PLAINTS

KANU SARDA @New Delhi

WORRIED by the emerging trend of judges harassed and threatened for passing adverse orders, the Supreme Court on Friday expressed displeasure at Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) and Intelligence Bureau (IB) for not responding properly to complaints against such incidents.

A bench of Chief Justice of India NV Ramana and Justice Surya Kant made scathing remarks against the CBI, saying it has done precious little in this regard. The remarks came when the bench was considering the suo motu case on protection of judges in the wake of the killing of Jharkhand Additional District Judge Uttam Anand last week.

CJI Ramana told Attorney General KK Venugopal judges are not just being attacked physically, but also mentally through intimidating messages on WhatsApp and circulation of posts in social media.

The CJI said that in some places, CBI investigation was ordered. He was seemingly referring to the order passed by Andhra Pradesh High Court last year, directing CBI investigation into threatening social media posts made against high court judges. "In one or two places, courts ordered CBI inquiry. It is sad to say that CBI has done nothing. We expected some change in CBI's attitude. But there has been no change. We are sorry to observe that," he told the Attorney General.

"It is a new trend in this country. If an adverse order is passed, judiciary is maligned. Even though judges complain, there is no response. CBI, IB etc aren't helping judiciary at all," the CJI added while slating the hearing for August 9.

The bench sought CBI's presence on August 10, to apprise the court of the progress it has made in the investigation in the Jharkhand judge's death. The bench also sought the response of the Centre on a plea seeking a special protection force for judges and courts.

"Look at the unfortunate death of a young judge. It is the failure of the state. Security should have been provided to residences of judges," CJI Ramana observed.

The Advocate General of Jharkhand, Rajiv Ranjan, informed that the state government had immediately constituted a Special Investigation Team and on the day of the crime two persons who were in the auto-rickshaw which knocked down Judge Anand were apprehended.

"So you have washed off your hands?" CJI Ramana asked the Advocate General in response to that.

Govt asked to fill up tribunal vacancies

New Delhi: The Supreme Court on Friday expressed concern at the mounting vacancies in tribunals across the country and pulled up the government for not filing up vacancies. It observed that it is getting an impression the bureaucracy does not want these bodies to function. There are vacancies in posts of 20 presiding officers, 110 judicial members, and 111 technical members in all tribunals. The SC warned it will summon top officials of the government if the situation is not remedied.

CJI displeased with voluminous petitions

New Delhi: Expressing displeasure at highly voluminous petitions filed by parties before the Supreme Court, CJI NV Ramana wondered if the purpose of this was to terrorise judges against reading petitions in full. The remarks were made while considering petitions filed in the matter related to TRAI's tariff order. "Purpose of this seems to be that the judge should not read anything. Yesterday we had to engage a lorry to carry this," CJI told the counsel. He asked lawyers involved in this to sit together and file a shorter compilation.

Pvt member bills suffer in Parl logjam

MANISH ANAND @New Delhi

MPs wait for Fridays for pushing private member bills, but they find themselves in a spot amid this growing trend of both Houses ignoring this unique feature, which is aimed at filling the gap left by the executive in public interest.

On Friday, the Lok Sabha had listed as many 246 private member bills, while scores of other proposals await the lottery for listing, but the House was adjourned after quickly passing two legislative proposals brought by the government.

"These private member bills, which have been pending since 2019, will now be pushed to the winter session. While the monsoon session is disrupted due to political purposes, there has been a trend of not giving importance to the private member business," said Biju Janata Dal (BJD) leader Bhartruhari Mahtab, who had moved a few private member bills, which nevar came up for discussion.

Private member bills before the Lok Sabha on Friday concerned issues like fair compensations to dependents of martyrs from all forces including the state police, uniform education from primary sections to higher secondary schools and setting up a national commission for farmers.

BJP MP from South Delhi, Ramesh Bidhuri had piloted a private member bill proposing unemployment allowances for youth with post-graduate degrees. NCP's Supriya Sule was piloting a private member bill, which proposed to establish an authority to oversee the payment of financial assistance, provision of medical facilities, education and housing allowance, reservation up to five per cent in schools and institutions of higher education and five per cent reservation in jobs in both public and private sector for the dependents of martyrs.

A law for regulation of use of electronic devices, including mobile phones, by pedestrians, robust mechanism for disposal of electronic waste, compulsory voting, while another proposed mandatory first-aid training in schools.

Mahtab, winner of the best Parliamentarian award, told this daily "this is highly discouraging that private member businesses are not being given proper attention".

BJP, Sangh affiliate spar over new taxation bill

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

THE Lok Sabha on Friday passed the Taxation Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2021 without discussion. But outside Parliament, Swadeshi Jagran Manch (SJM), an affiliate of Rashtriya Swayamsewak Sangh (RSS), struck a discordant note and challenged BJP leader Vijay Chauthaiwale for a debate while sparring on social media over the merits of the new legislation.

The bill seeking to bury the contentious provision of retro-tax, brought before the Parliament by former President Pranab Mukherjee when he was finance minister, sailed through the lower House, sparing Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman the rigours of Parliamentary scrutiny. With the legislative proposal being a money bill, Rajya Sabha's nod is not necessary.

SJM convenor Ashwavi Mahajan vented out the building discomfort in the RSS ranks over a number of legislations passed without wider consultation, including the likes of the labour codes, Defence Essential Services Bill and Taxation Laws (Amendment) Bill.

Chauthaiwale, who heads BJP's foreign cell, asked Mahajan: "So you're demanding total ban on FDI (Foreign Direct Investment)." Mahajan responded, asking "is it a crime to talk about advantages and disadvantages of a policy?" Chauthaiwale replied. "Everything that is not criminal may not be in larger national interest, a point you repeatedly fail to acknowledge," he said in an apparent reference to the SJM's stand that FDI leads to gross outflow of Indian wealth.

Mahajan then challenged Chauthaiwale to a debate. Chauthaiwale, when approached by this newspaper, said he has nothing more to add. Whatever I had to say, I have tweeted". Mahajan said that he has had consistent views on FDI policy and in the context of the present situation, an open challenge to Chauthaiwale to take him on in a debate over this matter.

Opposition leaders at Kisan Parliament to show solidarity with farmer protests

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

OPPOSITION MPs on Friday joined the farmers' protest in the national capital and witnessed 'Kisan Parliament', where agitating farmers passed a no-confidence motion against the government for not repealing the three farm laws.

Leaders of 14 opposition parties watched the 'Kisan Parliament' at Jantar Mantar, where farmers have been sitting in protest since July 22. The decision to join protesting farmers was taken at a meeting of these parties in Parliament. The MPs sat at the 'visitors' gallery' and witnessed proceedings of the 'Kisan Parliament' and passage of no-confidence motion.

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi, Leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha Mallikarjun Kharge and other party MPs along with MPs from DMK, SP, RJD, Left parties, NCP and Shiv Sena were present. MPs from AAP and TMC skipped but TMC MPs had met the protesting farmers earlier in the day.

The agitating farmers have ensured since the start of their protest that politicians and political parties will not be allowed to share their platform, but they can come and sit there to express their support.

"We have come to convey our support to the protesting farmers and their demand for repeal of the three black laws. You all know what is happening in Parliament. We want Pegasus to be discussed. They are not allowing it," Gandhi told reporters.

The Opposition MPs have been protesting in Parliament against the three farm laws and demanding their repeal. Agriculture Minister Narendra Singh Tomar said if the Opposition is really concerned about the farmers, then the government is ready to discuss the issues in both Houses, but they are not ready to talk. "They just want to be in the media's limelight," said Tomar.

Iran sees scope for joint effort with India to better situation in Afghanistan

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@New Delhi

INDIA and Iran can play a constructive and useful role in ensuring security in the region, especially in Afghanistan, newly-sworn-in Iranian President Ebrahim Raisi told External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar on Friday.

"Tehran welcomes New Delhi's role in the establishment of security in Afghanistan. The fate of Afghanistan must be decided by Afghans themselves, and we believe if the Americans do not sabotage the situation, this issue will be resolved quickly," the Iranian foreign office quoted the president as saying. This was the second meeting of the two leaders within a month after the Jiashankar met the Iranian President in Tehran while going to Moscow.

Raisi stressed that Iran holds special importance to boosting ties with India and said new steps must be taken to develop bilateral, regional and international relations with a new perspective. "There are various sectors, especially in economic and commercial fields, as well as new technologies, that we should use to promote the level of our relations," he said.

India-Iran ties took a hit after New Delhi decided to stop import of oil from Tehran following sanctions by the US. Fissures also appeared in the relationship after Tehran commented on Kashmir. "By moving in the direction of a joint cooperation programme, we can take steps to bring about different conditions at the level of relations between the two countries in the interests of the two nations," Raisi added.

Jaishankar, meanwhile, the Iranian Foreign Office said, assured Raisi that he would convey his views to Prime Minister Narendra Modi and ensure maximisation of cooperation.

Renaming of Khel Ratna triggers political debate

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

AMID euphoria over the achievements of the Indian hockey teams in Tokyo Olympics, Prime Minister Narendra Modi on Friday announced renaming of the Rajiv Gandhi Khel Ratna award after Major Dhyan Chand. Congress took potshots, accusing the government of cutting down sports budget in an Olympic year, while also asking for renaming of the Narendra Modi Stadium in Ahmedabad and Arun Jaitely Stadium in Delhi after sporting icons of the country.

"I have been getting requests from citizens to name Khel Ratna Award after Major Dhyan Chand. Respecting their sentiment, Khel Ratna Award will hereby be called the Major Dhyan Chand Khel Ratna Award," tweeted the Prime Minister. Ministers and BJP leaders hailed the decision.

Congress welcomed the decision to rename the award, but accused the government of being selective. Spokesperson Randeep Surjewala said he hoped stadiums henceforth will be named after sportspersons.

Accusing the government of fostering myopic political motive, Surjewala said the sport budget had been cut by ₹230 crore in the Olympic year. He also charged that the government is seeking to divert attention from issues like farmers' agitation and inflation.

Two more vaccines line up for regulatory nod

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

INDIA'S pool of Covid-19 vaccines is set to receive a shot in the arm with two more approaching the apex drug regulator for approval.

Vaccines which have applied to Central Drugs Standard Control Organisation for restricted use authorisation include Novavax, manufactured locally by the Serum Institute of India under the brand name of Covovax, and Johnson and Johnson's single dose vaccine.

Sources in CDSCO said the companies moved the application on Thursday and a meeting of an expert panel has been called to scrutinise their data.

SII had started production of Covovax for stockpiling in June. This showed over 90% efficacy in Phase 3 trials in the US. It is looking to launch the vaccine in India by September.

Johnson and Johnson's single dose is also seen as a crucial component in coming days as it may be logistically easy to administer and offer quick coverage. A bid by the Association of Healthcare Providers of India to procure Johnson and Johnson's vaccines in private hospitals, had failed last month due to regulatory hurdles.

Nearly seven months since the launch of the nationwide Covid-19 vaccination programme, only about 8% of the adult population in India has been fully vaccinated yet.

Future tense for 1,500 technical education teachers across states

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @New Delhi

ONCE projected as a panacea to uplift the quality of engineering education in rural areas and small towns, nearly 1,500 technical education teachers — fresh degree holders from IITs and NITs when recruited — across 18 states are now looking at an uncertain future.

While the Centre, which had appointed them as assistant professors on temporary basis in technical institutions in backward or "aspirational" districts in early 2018 amid much fanfare, seems to be in no mood to continue their services, states too have failed to regularise them. Many are PhDs or M Tech holders from IITs, NITs and Indian Institute of Science Education and Research and some are from the Indian Institute of Science, Bengaluru as well.

The World Bank funded Technical Education Quality Improvement Programme (TEQIP III) was aimed at aiding technical colleges in states including Bihar, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Chhattisgarh, Jharkhand, Madhya Pradesh, Jammu & Kashmir, Andaman and Nicobar, Assam and Meghalaya. As part of a MoU signed between states and the Union education ministry, state governments were supposed to have a "sustainability plan" for these employees and prioritise them in regular appointments. Most states have backed out.

The project implementation plan of the programme clearly specified that "well-performing faculty hired using project funds will be retained post-project, or else unchanged."

On its part, the Centre first extended the appointments last September for six months after the first contract came to an end and further extended it in March this year for another six months following protests by the TEQIP faculty members.

But with the contracts coming to an end in September, the appointees are on tenterhooks. Despite offering services in engineering colleges in some of the most far-flung areas, they are staring at joblessness.

"Our work in the colleges and areas we are in, has been praised by institutions such as Niti Aayog, but it's a pity that we are so insecure about our future and don't know what will happen to us after September 30," said Anshul Awasthi, who after doing his M Tech from NIT Surat, had joined Ujjain engineering college.

With no clear resolution in sight, these teachers, said Awasthi, are planning to protest in Delhi in the coming days to make their voices heard.

PM's expansion message for Indian heads of mission

Prime Minister Narendra Modi virtually interacted with Indian heads of missions across the world to push his Local for Global initiative. "The government has taken a big decision on exports. Saying that the world is getting smaller with physical, technical and financial connectivity, Modi said it is time India expands its imports as there are new opportunities across the world.

Disengagement total at Gogra point along LAC

Both India and China withdraw troops from their stand-off situation after verification

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE Indian Army and China's PLA have disengaged from Gogra (Patrolling Point 17 A) at Line of Actual Control in Eastern Ladakh and withdrew to their "permanent bases".

"As per the agreement, both sides have ceased forward deployments in this area in a phased, coordinated and verified manner. The disengagement process was carried out over two days i.e., 04 and 05 August 2021. The troops of both sides are now in their respective permanent bases," the Indian Army in its official statement said.

Both sides have carried out on-ground verification.

The decision to disengage was taken in the 12th round of talks between the Corps Commanders of India and China held on July 31, at Chushul Moldo Meeting Point in Eastern Ladakh.

An agreement was reached after a candid and in-depth exchange of views between both sides on the resolution of the standoff situation in remaining areas.

As reported earlier by the TNIE, the two sides also discussed the possibility of disengaging from both Gogra and Hotspring. About 35 soldiers from both sides were in a face-off situation since May last year.

The standoff which began in May 2020 with Finger 4 at North Bank of Pangong Tso had spread out to Hotspring, Gogra, Galwan. Standoffs also existed at Depsang and Demchok.

With Gogra disengagement one more sensitive area of face-off has been resolved along with the standoff at Galwan and North and South Banks of Pangong Tso.

As per the agreement, "All temporary structures and other allied infrastructure created in the area by both sides have been dismantled and mutually verified. The landform in the area has been restored by both sides to pre-stand off period," the Army said.

This agreement ensures that the LAC will be respected by both sides, and no unilateral changes will by made by either party to the status quo.

Both sides have expressed commitment to take the talks forward and resolve the remaining issues along the LAC in the Western Sector, the Army said. India has been asking for status quo ante with troops getting back to the pre-May 2020 positions.

There are around 60,000 troops from each side along the LAC of the Eastern Ladakh along with tanks, artillery guns and mechanised vehicles.

Maha govt announces package to help 156-year-old library ravaged by flood

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

DAYS after The New Indian Express detailed the destruction of a 156-year-old library by floodwater in Chiplun, the Maharashtra government announced a ₹50 lakh package to salvage the damaged books and artefacts of the institution.

Maharashtra's higher and technical education minister Uday Samant said the government would expedite the revival of the Lokmanya Tilak Library and Museum at Chiplun.

Thanking TNIE for its extensive coverage, working president of the library Prakash Deshpande said the report had prodded several individuals to call up them and extend help to restore historical documents and artefacts.

"The state government's help should reach us in time and not get mired in red tape. The financial aid should be directly handed over to the trust such that timely scientific restoration could be carried out," he said.

EXPRESS IMPACT

Unprecedented heavy downpour had raised the water level around the institution, submerging it under 12 feet water.

By the time the water receded and the officials reached the artefacts and books, heavy damage had been done.

The library, a repository of rare collections of books, including some that were printed two centuries ago, is also a treasure trove of old coins, pottery and historical reference books.

This is not the first time, the library was affected by heavy rain and flood. Back in 2005, it had lost several tomes and artefacts when a flood ravaged the area. Sources said that more than 40,000 books were lost in the 2005 deluge, leaving the institution with only 15,000 tomes, which now face destruction.

ED raids labs over Kumbh testing scam

VINEETH UPADHYAY @ Dehradun

THE Enforcement Directorate conducted raids at five locations on Friday in connection with Kumbh-mela Covid testing scam.

The agency sleuths raided offices and residential premises of Novus Path Labs, DNA Labs, Max Corporate Services, Dr Lal Chandani Labs, and Nalwa Labs in Dehradun, Haridwar, Delhi, Noida and Hisar.

After the raid, the agency tweeted saying it has seized ₹30.9 lakh, along with property documents, laptops, mobile phones, bogus bills and other incriminating documents.

The labs used fake mobile numbers and addresses to make false entries to inflate the number of tests they conducted, the ED said.

The agency had already registered a criminal case under provisions of the Prevention of Money Laundering Act (PMLA) against the accused companies.

A case had been registered against Max Corporate Service and two private laboratories, Delhi-based Lal Chandani Lab and Hissar-based Nalwa lab. Over 1,00,000 Covid tests conducted by these labs are under scanner.

SAD slams MP over plight of Sikligars

HARPREET BAJWA @ Chandigarh

SHIROMANI Akali Dal (SAD) president Sukhbir Singh Badal on Friday slammed the alleged eviction of Sikligar Sikhs from Madhya Pradesh and deputed a five-member delegation to visit the state to assist the community, which claims it is being harassed, victimised and forced by the state's police force to leave their homes and take shelter in forests.

More than 35,000 Sikligars live in Madhya Pradesh along the Narmada River.

Both the Punjab and Madhya Pradesh police have in recent times cracked down on the community on the allegations of manufacturing arms and supplying them to anti-social elements.

Sukhbir Badal said Delhi Sikh Gurdwara Management Committee (DSGMC) president Manjinder Singh Sirsa would head the delegation to meet the Sikligar community members, police and civil administration to verify all the facts and resolve the grievances.

Sukhbir Singh Badal

Members of the Sikligar community claim that they have been ignored for decades and even implicated in false criminal cases. The community claims it is finding it difficult to make ends meet as it has been denied land grants or jobs.

Sikligars are a community of blacksmiths, who once specialised in polishing weapons. It is said that the title Sikliga was bestowed upon them by Guru Gobind Singh. Badal said the SAD deputation would take up the issue of the rehabilitation of Sikligars. "We will pursue the possibility of a package to mainstream them," he added.

Sirsa said it was shocking to witness the current state of Sikligars.

"We will meet the Chief Minister soon and ensure that lease of their lands is restored," Sirsa added.

Inter-religious marriages invalid: Muslim law board

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE All India Muslim Personal Law Board (AIMPLB) has suggested that Muslims avoid matrimonial alliances outside the community, as such marriages are unfortunate and invalid.

AIMPLB's acting general secretary Maulana Khalid Saifullah Rahmani on Friday released a document, underlining the steps parents, guardians, representatives of mosques and madrassas across the country should take to stop inter-religion marriages.

Marriage between a Muslim and a non-Muslim is considered invalid even if it appears to be valid by societal standards, he said.

"It is not considered legal as per the norms of Sharia," said Rahmani. He said the guidelines had become imperative as a number of Muslim girls had gone away with non-Muslim boys, only to face hardships or even ending up losing their lives.

In the seven-point directive to the Muslim community, the board said that parents should be watchful of the use of mobile phones by their children and not admit their children, especially girls, to co-education schools. Muslim parents have been advised not to delay marriages of their children, especially girls, since "late marriages give rise to more such problems".

It urged the religious leaders to regularly hold Friday sermons and clerics to convene gatherings on teachings of the religion on marriage.

"Generally when such marriages take place, a notice is put up outside the marriage registry office with their names. It is an appeal to religious organisations, social workers, madrasa teachers and other responsible citizens to visit the homes of these youngsters to motivate them against falling prey to such fit of passion," the document read.

Assam, Meghalaya to constitute committees to resolve disputes

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

THE governments of Assam and Meghalaya on Friday decided to constitute "regional committees" to resolve the border disputes between the two states.

After taking part in the second chief minister-level meeting in less than a fortnight in Guwahati, Meghalaya CM Conrad K Sangma said both states have agreed to constitute three regional committees each to try and resolve the protracted dispute.

"As we try to resolve the dispute, we will focus on historical facts, ethnicity, administrative convenience, willingness and the sense of people's sentiments and contiguity of the land which falls under the areas of differences," Sangma said.

Each of the five-member committees will be headed by a Cabinet minister and it will have bureaucrats and local representatives. The committees will undertake joint visits to the disputed areas and submit their findings within the next 30 days.

There are 12 disputed areas which fall in Ri-Bhoi, West Khasi Hills and East Jaintia Hills districts of Meghalaya and Kamrup (Metro), Kamrup and Cachar districts of Assam.

The dispute will be resolved in phases with the initial focus being on six areas of differences which, according to both states, were less complicated.

"The Assam CM and I will also visit some disputed areas in order to send a positive message to people and show our willingness to move forward towards finding a solution," Sangma said.

He said there was a strong political will to find an amicable solution and that both states have agreed that whatever they would do, it must be done in a respectful manner.

Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma said the dispute arose after Meghalaya claimed certain territories in 12 locations.

"When we met in Shillong (on July 23), we felt the 12 areas of dispute cannot be resolved at a time, and we needed to adopt a step by step approach. After threadbare discussions at both meetings, we thought it will be good if we start with the six places," Sarma said.

Hezbollah rocket attack on Israel draws retaliation

BEIRUT

LEBANON'S Hezbollah fired a volley of rockets at Israeli positions on Friday, prompting retaliatory shelling, in an escalation between the Iran-backed Shiite movement and the Jewish state.

A flare-up along the border this week has seen Israel carry out its first air strikes on Lebanese territory in seven years and Hezbollah claim a direct rocket attack on Israeli territory for the first time since 2019.

The exchanges coincide with rising tensions between Iran and Israel since a deadly attack on an Israeli-managed tanker in the Gulf of Oman last week.

Following Friday morning's exchange Israel said it did "not wish to escalate to a full war", as the United Nations peacekeeping force in the border region, UNIFIL, warned of "a very dangerous situation" and called on parties to "cease fire and maintain calm".

Hezbollah said it fired dozens of rockets at open ground near Israeli positions in the disputed Shebaa Farms border district. It said the attack came in response to Israeli air strikes on south Lebanon on Thursday that were the first since 2014.

Israel said 19 rockets were fired, six of which hit Israeli ground. The Israeli military released a video of multiple vapour trails in the skies, and said it was "striking the launch sources in Lebanon" but did not elaborate.

UNIFIL reported an "artillery response from Israel in the Shebaa Farms area", following the Hezbollah rocket attack. The Shebaa Farms district is claimed by Lebanon but the UN regards it as part of the Syrian Golan Heights, which Israel has occupied since 1967 and unilaterally annexed in 1981.

Israeli army spokesman, Amnon Shefler, played down the prospects of all-out war with Hezbollah. He said life continued as normal on the Israeli side of the border. Hezbollah's deputy head, Naeem Qassem, said the group was committed to responding to any attack on Lebanon. AFP

Taliban seizes 1st Afghan provincial capital

Zaranj, capital of Nimroz, falls to insurgents the same day Taliban assassinates govt's media information dept head

He was known for ridiculing Taliban

Dawa Khan Menapal, the head of the Afghan government's media information centre, was popular in Kabul's tight-knit media community, and known for pillorying the Taliban on social media — even jokingly at times

Unfortunately, the savage terrorists have committed a cowardly act once again and martyred a patriotic Afghan

Mirwais Stanikzai, spokesman, Afghan Interior Ministry

MINISTER ATTACKED RECENTLY

On Tuesday, defence minister Bismillah Mohammadi escaped an assassination attempt in a bomb-and-gun attack. The Afghan and US militaries have stepped up airstrikes in their fight against insurgents, and Taliban said Tuesday's attack was their response. The Taliban already control large portions of the countryside. Govt forces continue to hit Taliban positions. The defence ministry on Friday boasted of eliminating more than 400 insurgents in the past 24 hours.

KABUL

THE Taliban on Friday captured their first provincial capital since launching an offensive to coincide with the departure of foreign troops, a major blow to an Afghan government desperately trying to push back the insurgents.

"Zaranj, provincial capital of Nimroz, has fallen to the Taliban," said Roh Gul Khairzad, the deputy governor of Nimroz.

She said the city — in southwest Afghanistan near the Iranian border — had been taken "without a fight", and social media showed clips of insurgents roaming the streets, being cheered by residents. The fall of Zaranj comes the same day the Taliban claimed responsibility for killing the head of the Afghan government's media information department.

The insurgents warned this week they would target senior administration figures in retaliation for increased air strikes.

The assassination on Friday of Dawa Khan Menapal, one of the government's leading voices, followed another bloody day of fighting as the war increasingly spills into Kabul. The news from Nimroz also comes as the UN Security Council met in New York to discuss the conflict.

Deborah Lyons, head of the world body's Afghan aid operation, painted a grim picture of the country's deteriorating situation. "The Security Council must issue an unambiguous statement that attacks against cities must stop now," Lyons said. Afghan officials expressed shock at the fatal shooting of Menapal. "Unfortunately, the savage terrorists have committed a cowardly act once again and martyred a patriotic Afghan," said interior ministry spokesman Mirwais Stanikzai.

Taliban spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid sent a message to the media saying Menapal "was killed in a special attack carried out by mujahideen". The murder comes after militants on Wednesday warned of more attacks targeting Afghan government leaders. AFP

China seeks to control Covid with curbs

BEIJING

CHINA recorded another 80 locally transmitted cases of Covid on Friday, as it seeks to control the biggest flare-up since the 2019 outbreak with a combination of lockdowns, mass testing and travel restrictions.

Of the new cases, 58 were found in Yangzhou in Jiangsu province, where the highly contagious delta variant spread among airport workers in Nanjing. Other cases were found in six provinces from Hainan in the south to Inner Mongolia bordering on Russia. That has taken the number of cases linked to the Nanjing outbreak to at least 1,222 since the middle of last month, prompting renewed travel restrictions, community lockdowns and the sealing off of a city of 1.5 million.

4,636 deaths reported in China out of 93,498 confirmed cases

1,370 people are being treated for Covid. 34 of them are in serious condition

Such measures have been implemented with much success following local outbreaks under China's 'zero tolerance' approach, although they are being seen as taking a major toll on society and the economy, stirring speculation that a new approach may be needed that allows for the virus to circulate to some manageable degree. China says it has administered more than 1.6 billion doses of vaccine,. AP

Call for probe into ilitants' killings

Cairo: A global human rights watchdog has urged Egyptian judicial authorities to investigate what appeared to be extra-judicial killings of militants by the military in the country's Sinai Peninsula. Future-Reliance deal: SC in Amazon's favour

₹24,713-cr merger stuck; apex court says Singapore EA award against FRL-Reliance Retail pact enforceable in India

All interim orders stand vacated: SC

A bench of Justices Rohinton Fali Nariman and BR Gavai of the Supreme Court said that an emergency arbitrator's award, is very much an order under Section 17(1) of the Arbitration Act. Amazon had argued that the order is binding, while Future had argued it was not. Amazon has further stressed that a 2019 deal it had with a Future unit included clauses saying the Indian group couldn't sell its retail assets to anyone on a restricted persons list, including Reliance.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New delhi

THE Supreme Court on Friday ruled in favour of e-commerce giant Amazon on its plea against the merger of Future Retail Ltd (FRL) with Reliance Retail.

A bench of Justices Rohinton Fali Nariman and BR Gavai also held that the order of an emergency arbitrator of Singapore restraining Future Retail from proceeding with its merger deal with Mukesh Ambani's Reliance Retail is enforceable in India, under Section 17(2) of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act (Arbitration Act).

An emergency arbitrator's award, the Court ruled, is very much an order under Section 17(1) of the Arbitration Act.

"It is wholly incorrect to say that Section 17(1) of the Act would exclude an Emergency Arbitrator's orders.....We declare that no appeal lies under Section 37 of the Arbitration Act against an order of enforcement of an Emergency Arbitrator's order made under Section 17(2) of the Act. As a result, all interim orders of this Court stand vacated," the court ruled.

A division bench of the Delhi High Court had stayed an order passed by the single-judge, who had pursuant to the emergency arbitrator's award, directed attachment of properties of Future Group companies and Kishore Biyani in relation to the Future-Reliance deal.

The single-judge order of the High Court had upheld the award of an emergency arbitrator, directed attachment of the properties and restrained Future Retail Limited from going ahead with the ₹24,713-crore merger with Reliance Retail.

In the 103-page judgement, the bench held that, "A party cannot be heard to say, after it participates in an Emergency Award proceeding, having agreed to institutional rules made in that regard, that thereafter it will not be bound by an Emergency Arbitrator's ruling."

Lenders to Future Group a worried lot

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

LENDERS of cash-strapped Future Retail are the most worried lot with the Supreme Court's ruling favouring Amazon in its long-running dispute with Kishore Biyani-led group on its merger deal with Reliance Limited.

As it is, the Future Group has been piling on more debt to keep operations running in the aftermath of the Covid-19 led lockdowns. There is a marked fear that this outstanding dues could now become "unsustainable", said two people in the know on condition of anonymity, adding that only an out-of-court settlement can save the retail chain and its hundreds of employees.

"Banks are waiting for the money. All these months, they were hoping that Reliance will take over Future's liabilities but now it seems that the Future Group companies, which have already defaulted on loans and other repayments, will face bankruptcy proceedings," rued one of the persons.

Future Group on its part, however, said that there are remedies available in law, which it will exercise following the Supreme Court judgement in the arbitration award with Amazon. "The judgement addresses two limited points related to the enforceability of the Emergency Arbitrator's order and not the merits of the disputes. FRL is advised that it has remedies available in law, which it will exercise. "FRL intends to pursue all available avenues to conclude the deal," it said.

An end of legal routes for Kishore Biyani's firm?

BISMAH MALIK @ Bengaluru

THE Supreme Court's verdict on upholding the Singapore emergency arbitration order in favour of Amazon may signal an end of legal road for Kishore Biyani's sinking retail empire, Future Group, with ₹24,713-crore ($3.4-billion) deal with Reliance Retail stuck.

The SC's landmark judgement which acknowledged the emergency arbitration orders within the ambit of Arbitration and Conciliation Act , as per the industry and law experts, also paves way for foreign institutional investors as well as the conglomerates to actively consider business deals/ investments in Indian firms with the lesser regulatory burden. In October last year, Amazon succeeded in securing an injunction on Future Retail Limited (FRLS) sale to Reliance, which the e-tailer said violates its first right of refusal.

Future Group is most likely to appeal for the review of the SC verdict, which according to experts, will not hold much weight, and therefore, the debt-ridden retail firm will have to await the final judgement from the tribunal or settle the dispute with Amazon.

Amazon, on the other hand has welcomed the SC judgement which also puts it in a stronger position to stop its rival Reliance from acquiring the retail, warehousing and logistics assets of the Future Group and consolidate in the growing $1 trillion industry.

"We welcome the verdict of the hon'ble Supreme Court of India upholding the Emergency Arbitrator's award. We hope that this will hasten a resolution of this dispute with Future Group," an Amazon spokesperson told this publication in a statement.

Lomesh Kiran Nidumuri, Partner at Indus Law, said that SC verdict has also brought a much needed clarity on the implementation of emergency arbitrator orders in India. "Future Group's contention was that the Emergency orders are not enforceable in India, and that has been set aside. On the legal prospects, Future Group cannot challenge the SC verdict altogether, but they can file for a review, and there as well, the retail company has limited scope of succeeding. At the Singapore tribunal, Future Group may ask for modification of the EA order and the final award again will be enforceable in India," Nidumuri added.

Neerav Merchant, Partner, Majmudar & Partners, said that on account of the judgement the deal is stalled for some more time for sure. "However, Future Group can approach the (SIAC, Singapore) arbitral tribunal and try to vacate the emergency arbitrator award rather than struggling further in India.

Limited legal options for Future Group, say exprts

"I understand that the SC has only ruled on validation of Emergency Arbitrator's authority to restrain Future Group, therefore, Future Group can challenge the injunctive restrictions before the Delhi High court," said Neerav Merchant, Partner, Majmudar & Partners

INDONESIA FOREX RESERVES AT $137.3 BN

Indonesia's foreign exchange reserves increased by some $2.00 million in July to $137.3 billion, equivalent to 8.9 months of imports, boosted by the government's global bond issuance, the central bank said on Friday. The rupiah, which was relatively stable in July, has strengthened nearly 1% this month on dovish comments from the US Federal Reserve, which coincided with comments from Indonesian officials that the country's latest Covid-19 wave of infections had peaked. The amount of the reserves will be sufficient to finance 8.6-8.9 months of imports and foreign debts. It is also higher than the international standard of three months of imports. The (figures) increased compared to the position at the end of June 2021 at $137.1 billion," said BI's Head of Communication Department, Erwin Haryono. BI assessed that the foreign exchange reserves would be able to support the resilience of the external sector and maintain Indonesia's macroeconomic and financial system stability.

CHINA

CHINESE RETAILER SHEIN LACKS DISCLOSURES, MADE FALSE STATEMENTS ABOUT FACTORIES

Shein, the fast-growing Chinese online retailer, has not made public disclosures about working conditions along its supply chain that are required by law in the UK, and the company until recently falsely stated on its website that conditions in the factories it uses were certified by international labour standards bodies, Reuters has found. In Britain, companies over a certain size must prominently state on their websites the steps they are taking to combat forced labour as part of the country's Modern Slavery Act 2015. Shein's "social responsibility" page states that it "never, ever" engages in child or forced labour, but does not provide the full supply chain disclosures required by British law. The law mandates that firms selling more than 36 million pounds of goods globally per year must provide a statement on a searchable link available on a prominent place on its home page, dated to a financial year and signed by a director, outlining the steps it is taking to prevent modern slavery in its supply chain.

THAILAND

BANK OF THAILAND HOLDS MAIN RATE IN SPLIT VOTE

The Bank of Thailand (BoT) held the key interest rate unchanged at 0.5% on August 4, but two policy-makers broke with the consensus and called for more easing. The two dissenters on the monetary policy committee voted to cut the rate by 25 bps, while the other four members opted for no change. The members who voted for a cut argued this would "shore up the economy and mitigate heightened risks in the period ahead", the BoT's statement said. It lowered its growth forecast for Southeast Asia's second largest economy, as the spread of the delta Covid variant is seen adversely affecting private consumption and tourist inflows. In the previous statement in June, the bank viewed the economy as growing 1.8% in 2021 and 3.9% in 2022, down from its earlier projection of 3.0% in 2021 and 4.7% in 2022.

FOCUS ON MULTIMODAL LOGISTICS KEY TO DRIVE GROWTH: EXPERTS

IN a conversation with Prabhu Chawla*, Editorial Director, The New Indian Express, author and senior journalist* Kaveree Bamzai on TNIE's Expressions — a series of webcast — sector experts such as Randhir Singh Kalsi*, Executive Board Member, Maruti Udyog India Ltd;* Vineet Agarwal*, President, Assocham, and MD, Transport Corp of India;* Sukanta Das*, Chief Logistics Officer, Hindalco Industries and* Srihari Icharapu*, Co-founder and CEO, Cargo Exchange say, while Covid-19 increased opportunities and new avenues for the sector, the industry had struggled to manage the supply chain.*

Randhir Singh Kalsi, Executive Board Member, Maruti Udyog India Ltd., says, "There is a focus on multimodal transportation and the first thing that comes to mind is that railways should be encouraged, because it causes less pollution, is supposed to be faster, and reduces congestion on road."

From an auto perspective, he says, railways have to create huge auto-handling terminals at the loading points and the destination points. "Nevertheless, the action has started in that direction. We were doing 8% transport through railways earlier, which has increased to 15% in just three years."

Infrastructure is the biggest concern for multimodal transportation, even for the alternate system of waterways, Kalsi adds.

Sukanta Das, Chief Logistics Officer, Hindalco Industries, also mentions they diversified and localised suppliers and maximised the use of railways to evacuate stuff, which helped the company manage a higher amount of exports.

63% of the load in India is still by road, which is around 25% in China, says Vineet Agarwal, President, Assocham, and MD, Transport Corp of India.

"The network is created, it's just that the capacity needs to be channeled. We have the best networks in the world with the railways, we have a large number of wagons except that they need to be available at the right time and right place," he explains.

Ports being closed, which led to a huge congestion; shortage of containers, and rising costs of shipments were some of the major challenges posed by the pandemic to the industry. On the other hand, consumer goods saw a great boom and the cold chain, which has been a weak area, also gained momentum.

Srihari Icharapu, Co-founder and CEO, Cargo Exchange, suggests the need for a visibility solution, which could be used to locate trucks, containers etc. and then to reposition them to match demand and supply. "We are sitting on a huge set of data and certain analytical tools, performance monitoring tools need to come up so people can compare the time and cost of shipping through different modes and then decide what is appropriate for them," Icharapu adds.

RBI's calibrated liquidity normalisation

SESA SEN @ New Delhi

AUGUST'S policy meeting has tried to walk a tightrope in attempting to differentiate its liquidity manoeuvres from the accommodative policy rate stance, but economists say that the current stance may not prevail for too long. In fact, one dissent from MPC member Jayanth Rama Varma and the re-introduction of the variable rate reverse repo (VRRR) auctions are seen as the beginning of RBI's shift from unconventional monetary easing.

On Friday, the RBI doubled the quantum of VRRR to a total ₹4 lakh crore and it is set to conduct four VRRR auctions worth ₹13 lakh crore till September-end.

RBI governor Shaktikanta Das has clearly stated these auctions should not be interpreted as a reversal of the accommodative policy stance, but economists and the markets disagree.

"Recognising the excess build-up in systemic liquidity, we saw the RBI take its second step towards some form of liquidity normalisation. The first being the tolerance towards some upward adjustment in the 10-year yield in July," noted Abheek Barua, chief economist, HDFC Bank.

Daily systematic liquidity surplus has increased from ₹4-5 trillion in May to more than ₹8 trillion in August led by slowdown in currency in circulation.

Aurodeep Nandi, economist, Nomura, too, concurred. "We believe that the liquidity manoeuvres suggest, at the very least, that the RBI is uncomfortable with the large amount of floating liquidity. As such, allowing bond yields to gradually rise and more VRRR issuance are a first step towards liquidity and policy normalization," he said. For RBI, the next step, Nandi added, would be to wean off from the durable injectors of liquidity, followed by a narrowing of the policy corridor and finally hiking the policy repo rate. "In our baseline, we expect a 40bp hike in the reverse repo rate in Q4 2021 (Oct-Dec), followed by 75bp of repo and reverse repo rate hikes in 2022."

Govt took seven years to scrap retro tax because of ongoing court cases, says FM

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

FINANCE minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Friday said that the government has to wait for seven years to scrap the retro tax as many cases were sub-judice at various platforms, the government could not make legislative changes and had to wait for their logical conclusion in courts.

Sitharaman said it was in line with the "commitment of BJP" which did not believe in the retrospective application of tax.

"As promised by Arun Jaitley, in principle we do not believe in this. However, we couldn't act on this in 2014 because there were two cases going on," Sitharaman said.

According to Sitharaman, the government waited for them to reach a logical conclusion which was arrived in September 2020 in one case and in December 2020 in another.

The Taxation Laws (Amendment) Bill, 2021 was finally passed by Lok Sabha without any discussions.

Although delayed, the Bill is likely to help in settling disputes with Cairn Energy, Vodafone Group and 15 other companies over retrospective tax demands raised by the Union government. As the Bill says that it does not involve any expenditure, recurring or non-recurring, from the Consolidated Funds of India, finance ministry officials have suggested that the refunds involved in settling the disputes is likely to happen from the gross direct tax receipts.

Booster for IPO-headed start-ups: SEBI reduces lock-in period for promoters

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Bengaluru

The Securities Exchange Board of India(SEBI) on Friday decided to reduce the lock in-period for the promoters and other investors of the companies post its initial public offering from the current three years to a period of eighteen months under specific circumstances.

The markets regulator has also decided to move away from the conventional promoter or promoter group term to the person in control, which is in line with the structures of the new-age tech firms where the founders/ promoters aren't necessarily the majority shareholders. "The definition of promoter group shall be rationalized, in case where the promoter of the issuer company is a corporate body, to exclude companies having common financial investors. The disclosure requirements in the offer documents, in respect of Group Companies of the issuer company, shall be rationalized to, inter-alia,exclude disclosure of financials of top 5 listed/unlisted group companies. These disclosures will continue to be made available on the website of the group companies," it said.

In case of the reduced lock-in period, SEBI has said that the same will apply to those public issues where the objective is the offer for sale(secondary sharesale of the investors),or the issue is aimed at raising of funds for other than r capital expenditure for a project.

Quiet the Games

Eight Olympic Games are enough. I now just want to retire to a quieter, more relaxed life.
– Jesus Angel Garcia, Spain's long-distance walker, retires after his eighth Olympics

1ST TRANS MEDALLIST

Canadian footballer Quinn became the first openly transgender athlete to win an Olympic medal on Friday. Canada defeated Sweden in the final following a dramatic penalty shootout.

HEARTBREAK FOR WONDER WOMEN

Dejected faces in the aftermath of defeat understandable, but there is plenty for these girls to take heart from

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Chennai

WHERE do you even begin? That Great Britain had the same number of Olympic medals (three) as India's total appearances? That Great Britain was the defending champions whereas India took the wooden spoon in 2016? That this was a match-up between one of the ever presents and novices. That this was a match between David and Goliath. And David had punched above its weight to even reach this far. Even reaching the semifinal was considered unthinkable. To put the achievement into some kind of context, this is comparable to Leicester winning the Premier League with odds of 5000/1. It is something like that.

Superlatives were invented to describe sporting journeys like this but even those words won't do justice to the journey they have been on since finishing last at the Rio de Janeiro Games in 2016.

Their magnificent campaign — affected by Covid-19 before they were scheduled to leave — had appeared to reach a logical conclusion after Great Britain had gone 2-0 up. They were running rings around the Indian defence but the one thing this team doesn't do is quit. Battle hardened by surreal life experiences -- a lot of them have had to fight even before taking a stick while some resorted to hockey only to fight their way past innumerable obstacles — they did the only thing they know. Fight.

Two penalty corner strikes from Gurjit Kaur — who scored for three consecutive matches — and one from Vandana Kataria — a few days after her family was allegedly abused and harassed — put India into the lead in a second quarter that mirrored India's campaign.

Hopeless, hope followed by rousing rendition. 0-2 had become 3-2 in the blink of an eye. They weren't just going to toe to toe with one of the best women's outfits in the world, they were actually beating them. Most of it was down to Savita Punia and Salima Tete. While the former refused to be beaten, the latter's dribbling skills down the flanks was reminiscent of a footballer running at the opposition defence.

The GB backline couldn't handle her and at the halftime break, with the score at 3-2, stuff you wouldn't even see in films was being played out in real life. However for all of India's spirit and mentality, they were routinely conceding scoring opportunities (GB had 23 circle penetrations and 19 shots on goal) to the opponents. Skipper Pierre Pearne-Webb put one away to equalise even as the unforgiving heat was beginning to take a toll on both sets of players (there were unscheduled rehydration breaks). Both sides exchanged more penalty corners in the third stanza without adding to the scoreline with the match poised.

However, that's when Udita's mistake cost the team dear. She brought down a player in the D and earned a five minute visit to the sin bin. GB got themselves on the ball and reasserted their authority with a string of corners.

A combination of Savita and the defenders threw everything they had to stop three penalty corners but a fourth penalty corner in three minutes was too much and the pressure told.

To compound matters, just as Udita's suspension ended, Sharmila Devi received a two minute suspension. Playing eight minutes with 10 women in the fourth quarter was too much and they just couldn't mount any sort of sustained pressure.

Gurjit, four goals to her name, had a late chance to send the match into a shootout but it was deflected to safety. The hooter went soon, to leave most of the Indian players in tears. They were inconsolable even as the support staff tried to console them. But when the fog finally lifts and the team comes back, they will realise the enormity of what they have done.

WHAT NEXT

With Dutch analytical coach, Janneke Schopman, set to take over as coach of the women's team, here's a look at what next for the band of girls who have impressed all...

14 MONTHS, THREE EVENTS

For all the talk of inspiring, the only thing that will matter in medium and long term is success. In that aspect, they have three tournaments coming up in 18 months (Commonwealth Games, Asian Games and World Cup). Win a medal in one and be competitive in two and they will continue on this upward trajectory.

PRO LEAGUE

After failing to recognise the importance of one of FIH's most important yearly competitions, Hockey India have finally registered the women's team as well. What they do there, results wise, won't be important. But the experience of meeting the likes of Australia and Netherlands on a regular basis should keep in good stead.

FORWARD LINE

Yes, the scorelines made for bad reading during the early group stage matches. But the trust is they were playing well in all of those matches but didn't have the ability to put away chances. That's not on at this level. Going forward, this is something they need to identify. Less profligate in front of goal could ultimately propel them to bigger heights.

Bronze bout: Knee matters for Bajrang

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

WRESTLER Bajrang Punia was not his usual self when he took the mat at the Makuhari Messe Hall on Friday morning. He might have made it to the 65kg semifinals by winning two consecutive bouts but the victories were not convincing by his standards. Heavy strapping around Bajrang's right knee is not an ideal sight. There were indication of a knee injury even before he took the mat. Going by the way the matches panned out on Friday, it was ceratin that he was carrying some kind of injury. While he was declared winner on criteria against Ernazar Akmataliev of Kyrgyzstan in the first bout, his next opponent Morteza Ghiasi Cheka from Iran ran him close before Bajrang emerged victorious by fall in the second period.

Bajrang was not moving as freely as he used to. He is known to exert pressure on his opponents with his forward-moving style but surprisingly that was missing so much so that he was put on activity clock twice in the quarterfinal for being passive by the referee. The 27-year-old Haryana wrestler might have used his vast experience to get past the first two rivals, but Haji Aliyev from Azerbaijan, a three-time world champion, made the best use of situation and kept attacking his leg to register a comprehensive 12-5 win in the semifinal.

"It's quite evident that the knee injury he sustained in Russia in June is still troubling him otherwise Aliyev in no way could have won with such a big margin. We haven't spoken to him or his coach yet as he is scheduled to compete in the bronze medal bout Saturday. Let him finish it then we will speak to him," said a Wrestling Federation of India (WFI) official from Tokyo. Bajrang sustained the injury during the Ali Aliyev Tournament in Russia. The injury kept him out of the mat for almost two weeks ahead of the Olympics.

Trailing 1-4 after the first period, Bajrang went on the offensive in the second and final period but Aliyev effected counter takedown to extend the lead to 8-1. Bajrang though narrowed down but the big move, he is known for, never came.

Meanwhile, Seema Bisla (50kg) lost her opening round bout 1-3 to Tunisia's Sarra Hamdi. The Tunisian wrestler went on to lose the next round drawing curtains on Seema's campaign.

Deepak's coach expelled for assaulting referee

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

THE country was staring at a prospect of losing an Olympic medal apart from a possible sanction on the Wrestling Federation of India after Deepak Punia's Russian coach Murad Gaidarov allegedly assaulted a referee at the Tokyo Games.

The referee had officiated in the 86kg bronze medal bout which Deepak lost to San Marino's Myles Nazim Amine on Thursday. The national federation, however, managed to ward off the trouble by immediately terminating the coach.

The United World Wrestling (UWW), the world governing body of the sport, on Friday afternoon held a disciplinary panel meeting and sought an explanation from the WFI. "The UWW served a notice to the WFI asking it to attend a disciplinary panel meeting. The panel insisted on taking back the medal and banning the federation for the misconduct of its foreign coach. WFI president Brij Bhushan Sharan Singh, however, intimated the panel that Murad has been terminated following which it relented," a WFI official told this daily from Tokyo. Nenad Lalovic, the UWW president, also spoke in WFI's favour and this helped us in avoiding the ban and saving the medal, added the official. The disciplinary meeting was also attended by a member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC).

Earlier, the IOC cancelled the accreditation of Murad and immediately shifted him to a hotel outside the Games Village. He is expected to fly out of Tokyo for India soon. "The IOC mailed us intimating cancellation of the wrestling coach's accreditation. He has been expelled from the Village," confirmed Rajeev Mehta, secretary-general of the Indian Olympic Association.

This, however, is not the first time Murad has been embroiled in a controversy. At the 2004 Athens Olympics, he protested and even attacked his opponent after his quarterfinal loss. This led to his disqualification from the event. Murad, who is expected to reach India on Saturday to collect his belongings before leaving for Russia, remained incommunicado for his comments despite repeated calls and messages.

Italy win first 4x100 relay gold, Jamaica women pocket title

AFP @Tokyo

ITALY produced a stunning performance to win the men's 4x100 metres relay Olympic title for the first time in their history on Friday with a national record of 37.50sec.

Britain's men made up for a poor series of performances in the individual sprints by taking silver in 37.51sec while Canada won bronze in 37.70sec.

Second Gold

Italy's victory gave their surprise 100m individual champion Lamont Marcell Jacobs his second gold of the Games. The British looked like they would take an unlikely gold as they led by a metre at the final changeover.

However, the unheralded Filippo Tortu reeled in Nethaneel Mitchell-Blake and sealed gold with the dip on the line.

Behind them, Andre De Grasse ran a stunning anchor leg to overhaul both Jamaica and China to add relay bronze to his 200m gold medal and 100m bronze.

Tortu looked as stunned as anyone at the finish and put his hands to his head as he nimbly dodged some obstacles in his way. A sizeable group of Italian team members seated in the stands roared out in delight and serenaded the triumphant quartet with Italian songs.

Jamaica women take gold

Elaine Thompson-Herah won her third Olympic gold of the Tokyo Games as Jamaica romped home in the women's 4x100m relay on Friday, timing a national record of 41.02sec. Thompson-Herah — who achieved the sprint 'double double' — ran the second leg, opening up a sizeable gap. The US took silver (41.45sec) and Britain the bronze (41.88sec).

Aditi just one round away from glory

ASHIM SUNAM @Bengaluru

EARLY on Friday morning, even as the nation was gripped with the Indian women's hockey team, some 80 kms away from the venue, one golfer, Aditi Ashok, was quietly doing her job.

The girl from Bengaluru, who had five birdies and two bogeys on the day, carded a three-under par 68 in the third round to end the day in second place. With this, she has a great chance to walk away with a medal with just one round to go in the women's event, weather permitting.

There is threat of a tropical storm in the area. So if the last 18 holes are not completed on Saturday or Sunday, the final standings at the end of third round will be considered. It would mean silver for Aditi.

Her consistent performance — despite competing against the best — over the last few days has gone under the radar somewhat. Even on Thursday, when she carded a five-under 66 in the second round, the men's hockey team hogged the limelight. Her display in Tokyo has made people sit up and take notice.

"I think nobody really follows golf as much. And whenever the Olympics comes around, it's always because we had a lot of sports where we were actually really good, like hockey, where we used to win gold medals all the time. I think with golf being (in the Olympics the second time), I think people... trying to follow it a lot more," said Aditi, who will be eager to make her second Olympics appearance count after finishing 41st in Rio de Janeiro five years ago.

The 23-year-old always lends a calm feeling but Saturday is going to be the biggest day of her life. The final outcome could well depend on how well she handles pressure. Irrespective of how she finishes the day, Aditi has aroused enough interest and that is an achievement in itself for a country where even the basics of the sport are not understood by many."For sure (there will be pressure) but I'm not thinking about it that much. I think no matter how I do this week, people have heard about golf and they continue to tune in if they have extended the golf coverage in India because I'm in the top 3. I think that's good itself. People seeing golf instead of the other sports, it's always good to get more people aware of the game."

Aditi's consistent scores in Tokyo
Round 1: four-under 67 (five birdies)
Round 2: five-under 66 (five birdies)
Round 3: three-under 68 (five birdies)

Jadeja, lower-order give India lead

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

WHEN the MSK Prasad-led selection panel dropped KL Rahul from the Test side for the home series against South Africa in 2019, the message was simple. Runs and runs alone will get him back his spot in the Tests.

Even though he part of the limited-overs side, he didn't get enough opportunities to play red-ball cricket, barring the semifinal against Bengal in 2019-20.

That hasn't changed, the pandemic has meant Rahul had to work elsewhere to address his shortcomings.

Whatever time he had in between limited-overs assignments, Rahul worked extensively with his coach Samuel Jayaraj in Bengaluru. Much of the focus, though, was on going back to basics. "Nothing," Jayaraj said in response to what changes he has made to his batting technique. "We just went back to basics which is to play close to the body and as late as possible."

The two had even analysed Rahul's visuals and found there wasn't any need to tweak his technique. With the runs drying up, Rahul's confidence had taken a hit. As for form, Jayaraj and the opener believed it was just a phase.

"If you have strong basics and if your technique and skillset is top-class, you can change your game anytime. I would say it is basically the mindset that has changed. Once you mature, the mind takes over. He is matured now and knows what is expected of him. If you notice, he has been playing late and close to the body. There is nothing called out of form or in form. It is all about determination and showing the commitment," Jayaraj said.

In fact, right-through his knock of 84 at Trent Bridge, Rahul has showed great restraint in playing away from the body. After the middle-order wobble on Thursday, he steadied the shipon Day Three with Rishabh Pant and Ravindra Jadeja to take India to a position of strength. After Rahul's 84, Jadeja's 56 and contributions from the tail took India to 278 and a first-innings lead of 95. Rain brought an early end to Day 3 with England placed 25/0.

"Last time in England he didn't do well. Now there is a purpose to do well. In England, you just have to forget what happened in the previous ball. Be it a boundary or whatever it is, you have to get it out of your mind. Take it one ball at a time. Switch off. Then on to the next ball. Enjoy it," Jayaraj said.

Ahead of the Test match, if Mayank Agarwal hadn't been ruled out of the Test, Rahul would have warmed the bench. He had scored a century in a warm-up fixture.

Barcelona can't afford Messi: Club president

BARCELONA: Lionel Messi's Barcelona career has come to an end because the cash-strapped Spanish club cannot afford to keep the Argentinian superstar, club president Joan Laporta said on Friday. Laporta said that he was not prepared "to put the club at risk" by renewing Messi's contract.

Relay team clocks record but fails to qualify

VIVEK KRISHNAN @Chennai

IT was a day of mixed emotions for the quartet of Muhammed Anas, Noah Nirmal Tom, Arokia Rajiv and Amoj Jacob. Part of the Indian men's 4x400m relay team that hit the track on Friday night, they failed to advance to the final slotted for Saturday night at Tokyo's Olympic Stadium. The source of comfort was that they managed to break the Asian record by completing the relay in 3:00.25 minutes, bettering Qatar's mark of 3:00.56 minutes clocked at the 2018 Asian Games in Indonesia.

The Indians were part of Heat 2 and finished fourth behind Poland, Jamaica and Belgium. In Heat 1, the US, Botswana, Trinidad & Tobago, Italy and Netherlands all finished with timings under three minutes. With the top three teams from both the heats and the next two best-placed teams making it to the final, India lost out to the men from Netherlands, who deserved their place in the final given that they were better than the Indians by more than a minute.

While the Indians managed to better their previous best, Athletics Federation of India (AFI) president Adille Sumariwalla was left a tad disappointed. He was expecting a timing of below three minutes from the relay team.

"I am not too happy. I was expecting them to achieve a mark below 3 minutes. But it is fine. At least, they have bettered their personal best and broken the Asian record. That is what I expect from all our athletes and that is what I have repeatedly stressed. When they come to the Olympics, they should be doing better than what they do in national events or equal their personal best," Sumariwalla told this daily on Friday. He had said before the marquee event that athletes who fail to better or match their personal best in Tokyo will be judged harshly. A comprehensive review will be carried out once the athletes return. "We will analyse how the athletes fared. We will speak to all the athletes and their coaches and then decide the way forward," he said.

High hopes from Neeraj

From an Indian perspective, ace javelin thrower Neeraj Chopra will be the cynosure of all eyes on Saturday. Hopes are firmly pinned on the 23-year-old ending India's long-standing quest for an athletics medal. His main rival is Germany's Johannes Vetter.

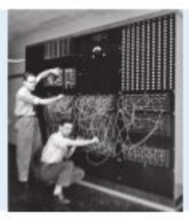
It was an early proto-computer, the largest electromechanical calculator ever built and the first automatic digital calculator built during World War II in the United States



INNOVATION

Harvard electrical engineer Howard Aiken dreamt of a large-scale calculator in 1937. He came up with a proposal that convinced IBM, as it used many of their existing components in a new way

Move aside Maldives, Bengalureans are now exploring newer international destinations, like Uzbekistan, Kenya, and Serbia

TRAVEL TALES

ANILA KURIAN

TRAVELLING has become such an integral part of some of our lives that when the pandemic took over the world, it almost felt like your favourite activity was snatched away. If the beginning of the year saw Bengalureans pack their bags to head to Maldives, now the new hot spots include Uzbekistan, Kenya, and Serbia.

After staying indoors for almost two years, homemaker Jyotsna M felt she needed a change of scene. She came across an "irresistible" travel offer to Serbia. "This is a place I hadn't really considered as a holiday spot. But with limited options, I decided to go along," says Jyotsna, who is currently in Belgrade. Along with family, Jyotsna is spending some relaxed time for the next 10 days. "I'd almost forgotten the joys of sightseeing, and that general excitement surrounding travel. Of course, there are different travel concerns in these times," she says.

Anita Sethi Ramakrishna with her husband Sachdev in Uzbekistan

Anita Sethi Ramakrishna, an entrepreneur, has been in Uzbekistan since June with her husband and will return this month. The couple has explored restaurants, shopping centres, tourist destinations that are open to the public now. "Can you believe, we toured around the different metro stations? Each of them is designed like a museum with beautiful chandeliers and gorgeous artefacts. Each station is dedicated to an author, singer, astronaut and so on," says Ramakrishna.

Navaneeth Unnikrishnan

The people of Uzbekistan are fans of Indians, so when Ramakrishna and her husband went to a few restaurants, they noticed that musicians played Hindi songs for them. When Ramakrishna's husband gets busy with work, she spends time reading, talking to friends learning Russian alphabets.

Natasha Celmi at Piazza Navona in Rome, Italy

Chef and author Natasha Celmi recently returned from France after a holiday with her family. She says, "We went around mid-June and quarantined for two weeks. But we chose an Airbnb with a beach view so we could go out nearby and had takeaways." When they went to Paris, Celmi recalls the empty tourist spots. "It almost felt like we have the Eiffel Tower to ourselves," she exclaims. The family then visited Disneyland but had to be booked in advance. "We couldn't hug the Disney characters and we had to mask up for pictures," says Celmi, who then proceeded to Italy for a family wedding. "So there's a 'Covid manager' for every wedding there and everyone has to send their vaccination details in advance."

To enjoy some time in the outdoors, photographer Navaneeth Unnikrishnan travelled to Kenya with his photographer friends. He says, "It was my first time in Kenya. We were at Maasai Mara National Reserve and Amboseli National Park for two weeks. We explored the wildlife and took some great pictures." When they weren't busy exploring the wild side of Kenya, they went to a few restaurants nearby. "The area that we were in is quite isolated. You wouldn't find many people there. But we had a lot of fun and got some great shots," says Unnikrishnan.

TRAVEL GUIDELINES

According to Nishant Pitti, CEO and founder of EaseMyTrip, travel bookings are on the rise.

With the ease of international travel restrictions, travellers are mostly opting for The Maldives, Serbia, Ukraine and Russia which only requires RT-PCR.

Countries that require double vaccination and RTPCR report are Germany, Spain, Swiss, France and Mauritius.

Indians can also travel to Qatar, Ukraine, Turkey, Bahrain, Egypt and South Africa. "However, the number of Indian travellers to these locations are limited due to the quarantine requirements," Pitti says.

Donning a new hat

Writer Agni Sreedhar's daughter Ramya Sreedhar is all set to create a niche in the Kannada rap industry

SANATH PRASAD

TO someone who gets writing naturally, experimenting with poetry and music is always an excitement. Holds true for Ramya Sreedhar, a Bengaluru-based Kannada rapper who is all set to create a niche in the industry.

Following her love for writing since childhood, she writes in three languages including Hindi, Kannada, and English, but predominantly shares her poems or shayaris in Hindi. However, the transition from poems to rap music happened after she was moved by the farmers' protest in January 2021.

"To me, writing comes very naturally and I could express myself easily through writing. When the farmers' agitation was underway across India, I was moved but could not be there to participate. So I thought why not put my bit through music and writing. Since the farmers' issue was a national issue, I released the song first in Hindi," says Sreedhar, who is also the daughter of a renowned writer Agni Sreedhar. The title of the rap song is Waqt aya hein.

Sreedhar, a skilled trainer and an entrepre- neur, now wants to make a gradual transition from a trainer to a rapper.

She believes that the situation created by the pandemic was conducive for her rap song to get a wider outreach. "The pandemic did play a role. People were failing to get rid of challenges because they were all spending time within the four walls due to the lockdown and with family problems taking over many households. This is what triggered me to write a song about enjoying life and seeing light at the end of a tunnel during the crisis," says Sreedhar who's latest rap titled Wake Up has garnered over 50,000 views on social media.

Wake Up, as Sreedhar explains is about making life really simple and it is too short to hate someone, spread jealousy, or be egotistic. The rap song also aims to spread the message of love, forgiveness, celebrations, and happiness.

The transition from melodious and light-hearted shayaris to energetic rap songs was not much of a challenge, claims Sreedhar, who also enjoys baking cakes.

Instead, it meant a slight change in the way of conveying her opinion to people in a quicker way. "In rap, it is easy to put forth a lot of ideas. In melodies, the music takes a lot of space and you cannot explain much. Since I wanted to share advice and reach out to people, I can convey the most only through rap as it is always opinionated," says Sreedhar who has been a lyricist for three songs for Shivarajkumar's starrer Thamasu.

Considering the competition in the Kannada rap industry, Sreedhar feels it does not worry her much. "I think every Kannada rapper is doing his or her best.

The person I compete with is myself. And rapping is something that I will be seriously doing in the coming days. The calling has finally come," says Sreedhar who is already working on the lyrics of her next rap song.

EKA PADA KAKASANA

(ONE-LEGGED CROW POSE OR FLYING CROW POSE)

In Sanskrit, 'eka' means one, 'pada' means foot, 'kaka' means crow and 'asana' means pose. It is an advanced arm-balancing pose that requires upper body strength and coordination. It is similar to eka pada bakasana (one-legged crane pose), but in the latter, the arms are straight. This pose is thought to activate the Muladhara (root) chakra, which is associated with mental and emotional stability, a sense of security and grounding. It helps to promote introspection and mindfulness.

STEPS

- Start in Bakasana; your palms placed shoulder-distance apart.
- There is a gap in between the fingers and knees are placed behind the upper arms while the gaze is forward.
- As you reach the final pose of Bakasana, prepare the upper body for a weight change.
- Grip the floor tighter and the forearms firmer along with a slight inward movement of elbows. Gradually shift your weight on the right arm and then, lift the left leg towards the middle of the torso.
- Extend your leg in the air. The gaze remains forward. This is the final position.
- Hold here for as long as you are comfortable without straining.
- Then, return slowly by bending and bringing the left leg closer to the middle torso. Now, rest it on the back of the left upper arm by stabilising the shoulder and forearms.
- Come into Bakasana and then repeat the same asana with the left arm also.
- Release and relax.

BENEFITS

- Improves blood circulation, boosts the nervous and endocrine systems, producing a rejuvenating effect.
- Relieves stress, anxiety, and headache.
- Helps in overcoming various digestive disorders, increases the blood flow to the stomach.
- Improves the functioning of the various internal organs.
- Regular practice stabilises major muscles like pelvic floor muscles.
- Improves concentration and focuses by triggering the endorphin secretion.

LIMITATIONS

- Avoid flattening of the upper back while transitioning from Bakasana to this pose, which might result in falling.
- Practitioners should avoid the jerking of the leg while going into the pose and returning from the pose.
- Attempt this pose under the guidance of an expert.

EAT, LOVE, LIVE AND... PRAY!

Good Morning Bangalore.

WE have woken up to a nip in the air interspersed with sunshine this whole week. When I talk to friends in other cities, they are either 'boiling', 'freezing' or 'washed-out'. Bangalore has always treated us well weather-wise even though our successive administrations and laid-back citizens have done their damnedest to turn our city into the next Sahara desert! The weather has changed in most parts of the world and 'namma-city' is no exception. At the cost of sounding like an idiot, even a Greta Thunberg has become irrelevant with her thundering 'how dare you' because the world is trying to survive with the Alpha, Beta and Gamma strain of the dreaded virus! Every time there seems to be a glimmer of hope some cretin will resort to spouting 'Fauchisms' and we are back to square one.a hundred thousand infections reoccurring in an (over-developed) country that cornered most of the vaccines and gave it away free.why? Because it's more important to pander to a skewed reason of not masking-up or not taking a free vaccine! Freedom!

I think the newly anointed leader has put his (white-shoed) foot down regarding the stricter adherence to prevailing lockdown (or opening up) rules. The 10 pm curfew (which everyone forgot about) will be enforced more strictly along with a (soft) version of Section 144. The restaurants (especially the ones with political bigwigs as benami partners) which are open till the wee hours better watch out!

My girlfriends Manjul Gupta ad Madhu Natraj met up for a little repast, cocktails and conversations. It was nice to step out into the happening resto-bar, SuzyQ, tentatively taking baby steps into the big bad world of Covid! A conversation with partner Anirudh Kheny immediately put us at ease when he showed us the extensive changes he made to the venue (it is all open with huge windows, bright and well ventilated). Their young chef Akash Tyagi meandered over with some great menu selections as did their expert bar manager who was very enthusiastic about the new 'Indian cocktails he had conjured up just to pamper us ladies. Sigh! It was great feeling special and wanted especially after slaving over a hot stove for over a year...my manicured nails doth protest!

The funny thing about 'stepping out' is that one is more emboldened every time and soon the mask slip (literally) whenever safety protocol is breached. Even at home, the whole rigmarole of sanitising the staff, wearing a mask while they work at home or in the workspace, sanitising shoes, packets, gloves and the whole shebang becomes more and more lax. I really don't know if it's a good or bad thing, but everything now is attached to a sense of getting browned off rather than an adherence to safety protocols. The university of WhatsApp has coloured our perception forever.whatever comes to you on your device is the gospel truth!

The long winded messages that precedes any phone and annoys the bejesus out of the most of us warning us to stay home and only go out if there is a dire emergency, frankly makes me feels foolish. I hang over my balcony and see the whole world passing by and loud music emitting from restaurants while I sigh at home. Not good for either business or my mental health. So when Chef Sombir Choudhary sent me a mountain of food from his new European menu which he launched from his restaurant Raahi, it sure gladdened my sighing heart. The food, with a choice of risottos, pastas and burgers made me feel positively light headed with delight. I admit I breached protocol by quaffing the food down without sanitizing the boxes first.but what the hell right?

Let's eat love, live and.. pray!

CHICKEN FAJITA

INGREDIENTS

• 500 g boneless chicken • 3 tablespoons Mexican seasoning • 1 tsp lemon juice • 1 tsp cumin powder • 2 tsp dry oregano • Salt to taste • 3 tablespoons pomace olive oil or any neutral oil • 2 medium onions, sliced • 2-3 bell peppers, sliced

ASSEMBLY

• 6-8 Flour tortillas or slightly thick rotis • Mexican Salsa or hot sauce • Guacamole (optional) • Sour Cream (optional) • Cheesy jalapeno sauce or grated 4 cheese mix

METHOD:

1. Cut the boneless chicken into strips and marinate with the dry ingredients, lemon juice, and one tablespoon of olive oil for at least one hour.

ONE of the industries that has been hardest hit by Covid is the alcohol and beverage industry, partly because of lockdown restrictions, and partly because of socialising and social distancing norms. This has naturally resulted in certain shifts and trends in the recent past. While it is difficult to generalise in the context of the larger picture, there are certainly many clear cut changes that are clearly a result of the current situation. This has transformed the mindset of customers, and in turn, outlets have needed to adapt to cater to varied requirements and taste.

We have introduced a number of cocktails which involve herbs, spices and other ingredients that are known to boost one's immunity. If there's one thing that the pandemic has taught us, it's that nothing is more important than our well-being and what we consume. It is not surprising that consumers these days demand healthier, more natural products, which have already accelerated within the drinks industry. This has become a game changer according to us and we notice a steady rise in 'healthier cocktails.' For instance, there has been a significant rise in people choosing drinks such as hot toddy, tea-infused cocktails, and gin-based drinks as they are produced with a number of natural botanicals. People prefer to have a couple of well-made cocktails in an open setting rather than binge on a number of standard blends.

With a number of dedicated drinkers, alcohol consumption is likely to go the same way. With the experience gained over the preceding year or so, our cocktail menu has been tweaked to cater to those seeking flavoursome and unique blends with natural ingredients rather than the same old artificial, sugary options.

RISHAB SHETTY TO STAR AND DIRECT IN KANTARA

THE ACTOR-DIRECTOR WILL BE COLLABORATING WITH HOMBALE FILMS FOR THEIR 11 TH PROJECT

Poster of Kantara

A SHARADHAA

RISHAB Shetty's upcoming film, which touches upon man and nature conflicts, will be bankrolled by Hombale Films. The makers took to social media to officially announce this collaboration. "Presenting you #KANTARA directed by @shetty_rishab with him in the lead role! We are sure the poster will keep you waiting for the movie," said the tweet.

KANTARA — Ondu Dantakathe will be directed by Rishab Shetty, who will also play the lead. Also starring Achyuth Kumar and Kishore in prominent roles, Kantara will have music by Ajaneesh Loknath and cinemtaography by Arvind Kashyap.

The film produced by Vijay Kiragandur will commence with the muhurath on 27th August, and the shooting will follow soon after.

Kantara joins the long list of prestigious projects — KGF 2, Salaar, Bagheera, Dvitva and Richard Anthony — from the stables of Hombale films. "We are happy to have Rishab on board for our 11th film and looking forward to presenting a cinematic bonanza soon," said the producer.

Rishab, who last helmed Sa.Hi.Pra.Shaale, Kasaragodu in 2018, is excited to don the director's hat after a gap of 4 years,

This is the first film of mine which is made on such a big scale. Getting this kind of backup has also given me a lot of responsibilities

–Rishab Shetty, director/actor and is equally happy to be associating with Hombale Films. Interestingly, this will be the first Rishab Shetty directorial to star him in the lead. "The talks of this collaboration with Hombale Films have been going on over the last two years. After Sa.Hi.Pra Shaale..., I was called over for a discussion.

Vijay Kiragandur

When Vijay Kiragandur mentioned that my focus should only be on the creative side and he will take care of the rest, I gained a lot of confidence. I am glad to be associating with a producer, who is passionate about films," says Rishab, adding, "Initially I was hesitant thinking whether a pan-Indian production house like Hombale Films would back my film. However, Vijay Kiragandur underlined that content is the priority, and here we are."

Kantara was a subject conceived during the second lockdown when Rishab was in his hometown. "The story was locked after I discussed with Vijay Kiragandur, and later with my good friend, Karthik Gowda," says Rishab.

The film's intriguing animated poster with Rishab as a raging farmer racing his bulls caught the attention of netizens. The title Kantara, with a tag line dhanta kanthe, also piqued the interest of the audience. "Kantara means mysterious forest, and a conflict between human and nature is represented in the poster," says the actor-director, who has also penned the story and dialogues with his team. "This is the first film of mine, which is made on such a big scale. Getting this kind of backup has also given me a lot of responsibilities," he says.

KALIVEERA
THE INDIAN WORRY

RATING 2/5

CE FEATURES

In the 1951 book Foundation by Isaac Asimov, a favourite saying of the character Mayor Salvor Hardin goes, 'Violence is the last refuge of the incompetent'. Kaliveera- The Indian Warrior, directed by Avi, is a film clearly inspired by this phrase.

Mounting the film mainly on lead actor Ekalavya's ability to pull off stunt sequences with elan, the director hoped to make a classic film that could be a trendsetter in the way action films are made in Sandalwood. However, the film, unfortunately, lays open his incompetence in scriptwriting and direction.

Kali (Ekalavya), a person from a Tribal community in the Lingoda village, comes to the city to take revenge against influential politicians, gangsters and terrorists. Concentrating more on the martial arts talents of Ekalavya, the film loses focus and fails to do justice to the strong core plot.

While Ekalavya's hard work can be witnessed in the action sequences, he has a long way to go with respect to his acting capabilities. Considering how his character is mostly relegated to just expressions, the lack of acting chops prove detrimental to the film. All he does in the film is either chasing or being chased, and going on a killing spree.

The remaining actors don't really make a mark in our minds. Even though stunt master Different Danny and his team have choreographed lengthy fights throughout the film, there is an overwhelming sense of monotony in the never-ending stunt sequences.

Special mention to the Kaliveera team for exploring new locations, and full points to cinematographer Hallesh, who captures the territories well and manages to keep us engaged in the proceedings.

Kaliveera is the first film to be brought out to theatres post the second lockdown, but it is rife with a lot of shortcomings. It is an age-old revenge drama, with only the stunts and locations providing a semblance of freshness. But overall, Kaliveera doesn't provide enough returns for audiences returning to the theatres after such a long time.

DIAL 100

Director: Rensil D'Silva

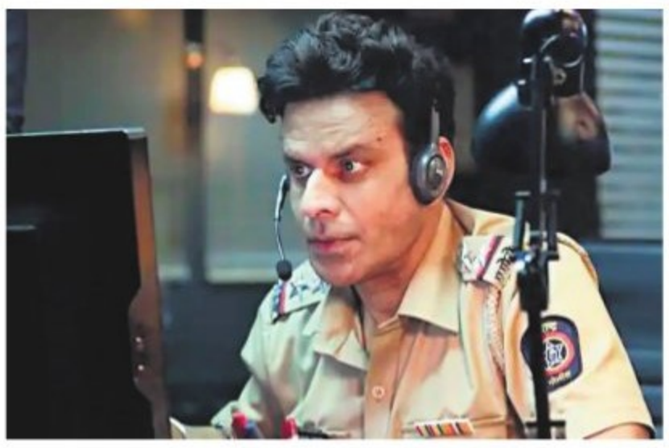
MANOJ BAJPAYEE STEERS AN UNSATISFYING THRILLER

SHILAJIT MITRA



It's the night shift at the police emergency control room. As senior PI Nikhil Sood (Manoj Bajpayee) ascends the stairs, we see snatches of his regular workplace. A cop dozes off at his desk. Another corrects someone on call that this isn't the 'fire department'. It's smart of director Rensil D'Silva to indianise the opening of Dial 100, which takes place over a single night in Mumbai. Reaching the top floor, Nikhil swipes a prayer before entering his office. He's going to need it.

Nikhil is transferred a call from a woman who sounds heavily in distress. She talks to him cryptically, pressing him for his name without revealing hers. "I just want to die..." she tells him in a crying voice. The call cuts off abruptly, but she dials back after a while. As they speak again, the control room server goes off. Finally, as Nikhil is pulling details on the mystery caller, he gets a buzz on his personal cell. To his relief, the woman's still alive. To his shock, she's kidnapped his wife.

RATING 2/5

Dial 100 was shot entirely during the lockdown—the midnight setting excuses the empty streets and contained locations. Some of the plot points wouldn't work if the film was set strictly post-pandemic. Both Manoj and Neena Gupta—who plays the sad, unstable caller Seema—are ace performers, but would we really like watching them in masks? Still, it's to Rensil's credit that he finds a way to touch on recent events: spiking suicide rates, film stars caught up in drugs. I just wish the main action was more in sync with the overall mood he's creating. Once Seema comes out with her plan, we're in a familiar revenge plot. Despite the impressive nocturnal cinematography (by Anuj Rakesh Dhawan), the motivations are clear as day. "It's no time for emotions," Nikhil says, while the film lurches hard towards them.

There are some nice directorial touches. Spotting a stranger in the control room, Nikhil badgers him for an alibi. It's a sign of his fastidiousness as well as his paranoid state of mind. Almost 80 per cent of the film unfolds on call; it gets talky but the changing angles and scenarios keep it visually tense. Rensil creates an intriguing world—one stretch, for example, is built around how rain impedes police work in Mumbai—but can't bring the different parts together satisfyingly. The climax is the clumsiest in years, and the emotional kicker in the end doesn't quite sting.

A mention of 'Tandav Club' may remind viewers of Manoj's delirious cop turn in a 2016 short film. He plays them better than anyone, inhabiting their fears and anxieties and flashes of anger. He's done it so often that Dial 100 – through no fault of its own – seems a bit routine. Neena Gupta toes the revenge thriller line, and you have to turn to Sakshi Tanwar, as Nikhil's wife, for a more human performance. With such a solid cast, the film could have done so much more. In the end, it feels like a missed call.

THE SWARM
Cast: Suliane Brahim, Marie Narbonne, Raphael Romand, Sofian Khammes
Director: Just Philippot

THIS CREATURE FEATURE IS GOOD HORROR

BHUVANESH CHANDAR

There's a frame in The Swarm that shows a wall poster of what looks like Leonardo da Vinci's Vitruvian Man, a work of art that relates the human body to the working of the universe. The whole film can be thought of as an extension of this idea, but through the monster horror prism.

In an unnamed countryside in France, single mother Virginie (Suliane Brahim) struggles to provide for her children: Laura (Marie Narbonne), a late teen, and her younger brother Gaston (Raphael Romand). Virginie harvests locusts on her farm and tries to sell the high-protein produce to her customers. Her sales pitch also works: "There are more proteins in 100 grams of these locusts than in 150 grams of meat." However, the declining number of locusts and the dissatisfied customers who aren't ready to shell more threaten the family's livelihood. Soon, during a fit of rage, Virginie realises that the locusts that she so ardently cultivated have a taste for blood and that feasting on blood lets them grow bigger and reproduce on a large scale. I'm sure you can guess where the movie is headed.

This French Indie horror takes the best cues from the genre to tell a creepy, grounded tale about a bereaved family

To be fair, the film hardly tries to mask its intentions. The very first shot is an overhead establishment shot that hovers over agricultural fields, thick, dark woods, and eventually the greenhouse dome in Virginie's farm. The ominous music and the dark blue visual tint give away the 'horror' that is in store. Likeably though, the film adopts the slow-burn way of storytelling. Much like the locusts inside the greenhouse dome(s), the world of The Swarm is also rather condensed. There's a sense of claustrophobia with the family trapped in a precarious position, financially, geographically, mentally, and emotionally. The locust farm is all that the family has left and it is important for them that they win this battle. Much like the locusts perhaps, many other humans thrive on the miseries of this family, knowingly and unknowingly.

RATING 3.5/5

This setting is a crucial aspect of what works in this film. When Virginie begins to bleed for her family, literally, it's impossible not to feel disturbed. And all of this distress is while the story is being set up. What then is in store, I won't ruin for you, but let me just say it's not pleasant. How the horror brews is riveting. The closeups of the locusts make you recognise the unexpected magnificence of the creature. When you get that shot of a goat in front of the enormous dome, you naturally get reminded of Jurassic Park, and the film does a pretty good job of invoking some of the horror you associate with that film.

Sound is an important aspect of this film. With every greenhouse Virginie adds to her farm, the buzzing rises ever so slowly. It signifies the incoming danger, but it also stands for Laura's lack of control over her mother, her circumstances, and her life. Laura, like her mother, is trapped and wants out. Much of the conflict in the film might have been resolved had the characters had more communication between them. However, since we know the emotional longitudes and latitudes of these characters, we understand why someone like Virginie may not be so forthcoming.

Surprising the audience with fresh, creative storytelling is a challenge, particularly when it comes to the horror genre, but The Swarm does well. Like many creature-horror films, this one too uses reverse anthropomorphism and relates the characteristics of the creature to the humans. True horror resides in the breaking down of the characters you care about, and to see them become what they fear. When you process Virginie as the mother to her human and insect children, a lot begins to be clear. It was, after all, Da Vinci who said, "Nature appears to have been the cruel stepmother rather than the mother of many animals."
